

DEBRIS HIDES MANY BODIES

The Flames and Escaping Steam Add to Horror at Detroit.

THIRTY-ONE DEAD

Many Private Homes in That City Have Been Turned Into Hospitals.

LOSS IS OVER $180,000

Detroit, Nov. 27.—A pall of death hangs over this city. The hospitals are filled with the wounded and dying and over a score of corpses lie in the morgue as a result of yesterday's explosion in the Henberthy engine room. An all night search for the dead went on. Shortly after midnight the twenty-seventh body, unidentified, was found. At daylight Gnatons Brock died at the hospital making twenty-eight victims. Two others died at 2 o'clock.

Thirty-three persons were seriously injured and are in the hospital some of whom are sure to die.

Twenty-Five Still Missing
In addition to these a dozen or more of the employees, who suffered comparatively slight injuries aside from the shock were taken directly to their homes. Twenty-five men and boys have not as yet been located at their homes or at the hospitals. The ten unidentified bodies account for ten of these, and the officers of the company say they feel positive that the major portion of the remaining fifteen are at their homes.

Rescues Are Thrilling
Many of the rescues were thrilling and several times a part of a body of an imprisoned man was seen several minutes before he could be reached.

The property loss is $180,000. The cause of the explosion is a mystery. The boilers were inspected only a few days ago and were found to be in perfect condition; indeed the firm was noted for its efficient engineering force.

Stubborn Battle Near Pablo

Washington, Nov. 27.—Commodore Perry sent the following cable today: "Stubborn fighting between the contending forces at Pablo. There will probably be fighting today near Gatu. I have secured assurances that the firing shall cease while the trains are passing. Forty wounded Colombians were brought in on the train last night."

BANK OF BRODHEAD VS. JACOB SPEICH

Ed McGowan was in Madison yesterday on an important law suit before H. M. Lewis, referee in bankruptcy. Mr. McGowan represented the Bank of Brodhead, in their suit against Jacob Speich, who failed some time ago for $20,000 and was indebted to the bank in the sum of $3,600 for money advanced him.

The bank held three notes against Speich, one for $1,400, one for $1,450 and one for $750 and took a bill on a lot of cheese to secure themselves. They had allowed Speich to sell the cheese that they first had a bill of sale of and took a new bill of sale on some new cheese. The trustee in bankruptcy contends that the new bill of sale was given less than four months before the failure and on that account their claim is fraudulent.

The bank contends that the change was simply a transfer of securities and that their claim should be allowed. Referee Lewis found in favor of the bank on the $750 note but did not get to the consideration of the $1,400 and $1,450 notes.

It is quite an important case and Mr. McGowan is confident of having the two large notes allowed.

WILL BE NO SCHOOL THANKSGIVING DAY

When the public schools closed this afternoon, teachers and pupils were released from school duties until next Monday, it being the custom not to hold school on the Friday following Thanksgiving. This gives quite a little vacation at Thanksgiving time and affords several of the teachers an opportunity of spending the great feast day of the year at home. Several of the High School teachers will take advantage of this opportunity. Miss Lina Johns will eat Thanksgiving turkey at her home in Dodgeville, Miss Emma Paulson will spend the next few days at her home in Clinton, Prof. William Morris will enjoy meeting with the members of his family at Palmyra and Miss Sarah Hostetter will give thanks at her home in Oak Park, Ill.

The Odd Fellows' Social and Beneficial club will hold their annual banquet and reception this evening at East Side Odd Fellows hall. Only Odd Fellows and their families are expected. The banquet will begin at six o'clock and last until all have had their fill of the good things with which the tables will be spread.

MILLIONS FROM WAR SUPPLIES.

Revenue Received by Government from Start of Spanish Conflict.

Washington, Nov. 27.—A statement has been prepared in the internal revenue bureau which shows the total receipts from the war revenue act only from June 13, 1898, to June 30, 1901; also the four months of the act of March 2, 1901, from July 1 to Oct. 31, 1901. The total receipts from these acts alone amounted to $343,838,931, as follows, cents omitted:

Documentary stamps, $115,352,390; proprietary stamps, $14,279,856; beer, $111,700,058; special taxes, $18,829,569; tobacco, $52,887,273; snuff, $2,971,198; cigars, $9,480,545; cigarettes, $3,907,914; legacies, $11,162,802; excise tax, $3,053,572; mixed flour, $23,154; additional taxes on tobacco and beer, $991,208.

Killed in Row Over Poker.

Harry McGee, son of an oil operator of Pittsburgh, Pa., is dead as a result of a shooting affray during a poker game at his home in North Bridge-water. At 2 o'clock Sunday morning McGee and several companions, among whom was Leroy Evans, a young colored man, were engaged in a game of poker, and McGee is said to have struck Evans, who left the house. He came back and challenged McGee to a duel. This proposition was refused. Evans drew his revolver and fired. While McGee was falling he pulled his revolver and fired at Evans, but missed. Evans fired two more shots. McGee died, and Evans is under arrest.

EPIDEMIC IN BOSTON; TWENTY NEW CASES

Smallpox Continues to Spread in the Hub City, and Schools May Be Closed.

Boston, Nov. 27.—Twenty new cases of smallpox have developed in this city since yesterday. All but one were either unvaccinated or vaccinated in childhood, and the Boston board of health has issued another appeal to the citizens to be vaccinated. The health authorities fear they will be forced to close a majority of the schools of the city. The greater part of the new cases today are either in Roxbury or South Boston.

GREAT SURPRISE FOR THE MILKMEN

Racine Dealers Compelled to Sell Samples to State Officials, Who Will Test Quality.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 27.—Racine milkmen were taken by surprise yesterday when State Dairy Inspector Norton J. Field of Milwaukee and Assistant Dairy and Food Commissioner C. W. Sweeting of Manitowish accompanied by policemen, held them up as they started out and purchased from each a pint of milk. Twenty-four samples were sealed, labeled, and shipped to Milwaukee, where the state chemist will test them. Other inspectors have been about Racine gathering samples of butter.

HAPPY SOCIAL EVENT

Mrs. Hiram and Mrs. Harry Merrill Being Hostesses at a Charming 5 O'clock Tea.

A happy social event occurred at the home of Mrs. Hiram Merrill, 152 Park place last evening. Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Harry Merrill being the hostesses at a charming five o'clock tea at which about seventy-five of their lady friends were the guests. The hostesses were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Twigg Wiggins, of Chicago, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Merrill. Mrs. Wiggins's visits are always warmly welcomed by her many Janesville friends and her presence added much to the pleasure of last evening's party.

The parlors of the pleasant home were handsomely decorated with chrysanthemums and carnations and amid the most happy of surroundings, the dainty supper was prettily served at small tables, soon after the arrival of the guests and their cordial welcome by the gracious hostess. The supper was unusually tempting in quality and the service was faultless, the waitresses being Misses Louise Merrill, Mary Stevens, Marjorie Mount Jennie Boomer and Isabelle Menzies. After supper the early evening was spent in playing six handed euchre, at which game the lucky number prize was won by Mrs. J. P. Baker and Miss Elizabeth Ford was awarded the lucky number prize. The Mesdames Merrill will entertain another company of friends at a similar party next Saturday afternoon.

ATE THEIR HUSBANDS

Two Women and Three Men at Marburg, Syria, on Trial Charged with Cannibalism.

Vienna, Nov. 27.—Two women charged with having killed, cooked and eaten their husbands are being tried at Marburg, in Syria. Among them are two men who, it is alleged, were guilty with the women in killing and eating three other relatives besides the husbands mentioned. It is alleged the prisoners were starving when they committed the deed and had to choose between cannibalism and death.

Clarence L. Clark is home to spend Thanksgiving with his family.

IS FOUND DEAD UNDER A DEER

Hunter Probably Killed
While Dragging a Carcass He Had Shot.

BODY WAS FROZEN

Bullet Hole in Head and Hands Clutching Antler, Told Tragic Story.

HUNTING STOPS DEC. 1

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 27.—The first fatality during the present deer season in this immediate region came to light yesterday when Justice Mattso of Marengo, brought to this city the body of William Johnson.

Saturday some hunters in the region found the body of Johnson in the woods. A bullet hole in the head told the cause of his death, and the frozen condition of his body showed that he must have been dead for at least twenty-four hours. Johnson has had a homestead at Marengo for ten years, but a good share of the time he has lived in Ashland.

Was Accidentally Shot

From the circumstances and conditions that surrounded Johnson's death, it is evident that he was accidentally shot by some deer hunter, who probably was aware of the awful result of his bullet, and yet kept locked in his breast the secret of the accident.

Johnson had apparently killed a deer in a small valley near a creek, and dragged it to the summit of the hill. When shot he had just reached the top of the incline, pulling the deer up with him, his body being in a bent position. The bullet which struck him entered the top of his head.

Clutching Horns of the Deer
When he was found he was lying on his back, still clutching the horns of the deer, with his body partly under it. Some hunter seeing the bent form with the deer head coming slowly in sight out of the valley, mistook him for a live deer, and his unerring bullet carried death to his fellow hunter.

The coroner's jury found that he had come to his death by being hit by a stray bullet. Frank Leasla, a young boy, starting out on a hunting trip, was shot in the hand by a premature discharge of a gun.

No Hunting After Dec. 1

Madison, Wis., Nov. 27.—(Special) Many hunters do not appear to realize that the season for hunting partridges, prairie chickens and grouse ends December 1, at the same time as the open deer season. Several parties have been heard of who intend to do some partridge hunting next week, but if they carry out their intention they are liable to run into the arms of a game warden, and become subject to a fine of $10 to $50.

Ducks and snipe may be shot until January 1, and rabbits and squirrels are lawful game all winter. After the close of the deer season dogs may be used in running rabbits.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

Pretoria, Nov. 27.—Plicher has captured twenty-four Boers at Taken-veld on the Orange River colony.

London, Nov. 27.—Miss Vanderbilt Wackerman, the beautiful American girl, who became insane here about a fortnight ago has become violent and has to be fed through a tube.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 27.—While crossing the channel to this place Lawrie Marks, American book maker, jumped overboard and was drowned. It is reported that he was wanted in connection with the Liverpool bank robbery.

DAVID NATION IS GIVEN A DIVORCE

Medicine Lodge, Kan., Nov. 27.—David Nation last night was granted a divorce from Carrie, the hatchet wielder, on the ground of desertion and cruelty. Carrie gets the home property by the term of the decree.

MILWAUKEE WOMAN LAWYER MARRIED

Kate Hamilton Pier of the Cream City, Weds James Alexander McIntosh, Railroad Contractor.

Milwaukee, Nov. 27.—Kate Hamilton Pier, attorney at law and James Alexander McIntosh, railroad contractor, were married at the residence of the bride's mother yesterday, the Rev. H. H. Jacobs performing the ceremony. Only intimate friends of the family were present. Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh left this afternoon on a wedding journey. Mrs. McIntosh is one of the best known women lawyers in the country. She was admitted to practice before the United States supreme court, being the first woman lawyer to claim that distinction. Mr. McIntosh is the senior member of the firm of McIntosh Bros., railroad contractors.

Emperor Going to Peking.

Peking telegram: A telegram received here from Viceroy Yuan Shi Kai announces that the empress dowager, the emperor and the imperial court will leave Kaifeng-tu for Peking on Dec. 2.

CONGRESS WILL MEET MONDAY

Party Caucuses Called to Gather on Saturday Night.

ARE FEW CHANGES

With Slight Exceptions Old
Chairmen of Committees
Will Be Selected.

CAPITOL IS IMPROVED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—Congress will meet next Monday. The caucuses for the nomination of the speaker and other candidates have been called for the night of the 30th inst. There will be no contest as nearly all of the officers will be re-elected, from the speaker down to the door-keeper.

Mr. Richardson of Tennessee will be the democratic nominee for the speakership. There are so few changes to be made in the personnel of the house committees that the speaker will have no difficulty in filling the vacancies and announcing the list before the Christmas holidays, instead of afterward as has been the custom.

With one or two exceptions, the old chairmen of the important committees have been selected, and there will therefore be very few important changes in the organization of the committees and of the legislative officers.

The Senate Continuous

The senate, being a continuous body, is already organized. Senator Frye, of Maine, having been elected pro tem at the last session to continue during the pleasure of the senate, and the sergeant-at-arms, secretary, chaplain and other elective officers having a like tenure. Owing to the large number of senators who retired on March 4 last, a general reorganization of the committees will be necessary, as nothing was done in this direction at the special session in April.

The senate selects its own committees, the party in power assigning the majority of the places and the opposition the minority. The senate then adopts the lists as submitted. A few committee chairmanships are also assigned, as a matter of courtesy, to the oldest ranking minority senators, so that they may have clerks and consultation rooms under their control. The republicans are in a large majority in the senate and they will, of course, reorganize the committees to suit themselves, and this is done strictly according to the rule of seniority of service. It is very easy to figure out just who will get the vacant chairmanships.

On Foreign Relations

The most important of these is the chairmanship of foreign relations, which will go to Senator Cullom of Illinois, he being the ranking republican on the committee after senator Frye, who prefers to retain the chairmanship of commerce, will be acting vice president of the United States, ex-officio, so to speak, and will occupy the vice president's chamber and be entitled to such honors and emoluments as are attached to it.

He will not have any extra duties by reason of this office, however, because the duties of the vice president are to preside over the sessions of the senate.

Other Senate Changes

The other important changes in senate chairmanships include the promotion of Senator Mason of Illinois to be chairman of postoffices and post roads in place of Mr. Wolcott of Colorado, Senator Elkins, of West Virginia to be chairman of interstate commerce in place of Mr. Cullom, and Senator Stewart of Nevada to be chairman of Indian affairs in place of Mr. Thurston of Nebraska. Mr. Stewart came back into the republic in pursuit of the money devil, at the last session.

His colleague, Mr. Jones, is now a republican again, although this fact may not put him back on the majority side of the finance committee, which he left when he became a populist. It is an interesting fact that Mr. Jones, who was first elected to the senate in 1873, serving continuously since, has been chairman of the senate committee on contingent expenses for a quarter of a century, except in a few years, when the senate was in the control of the democrats twenty years ago.

The senate contingent fund is a mysterious and elastic budget, and the man who controls it possesses a powerful lever for making his colleagues see things the way he desires to have them seen.

Capitol Improvements

During the long recess of congress many changes and improvements have been made in all parts of the capitol building, a general system of repairs, refurnishing and redecoration having been in progress. Everything has been completed except the work of putting a new roof on the supreme court chamber.

This work was delayed owing to the failure of the contractors to supply material and was finally postponed until next year, the court meanwhile occupying the room of the senate committee on judiciary. The supreme court chamber has not yet been put in shape for the court and the justices will continue to occupy the committee room for a week after the meeting of congress, at which time they will adjourn until after the holiday recess, when their own chambers will be ready for them.

CLAIMS WIFE AFTER DEATH.

Seizure Is Springed at a Funeral in Indiana Town.

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 27.—There was a sensation at a funeral here. Two weeks ago Miss Alta Hensley of this place went to Converse to visit relatives. Sunday she fell dead while walking in the yard, heart disease being the cause. When the body was brought here for interment Clarence Smith of Greentown took a place at the head of the mourners and announced that he and Miss Hensley were married two weeks ago. The bride had asked that their union be kept a secret until her next birthday anniversary. Rev. Mr. Puckett, who performed the ceremony, also officiated at the funeral services.

Engle's Get Away.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 27.—Early this morning a runaway engine starting at Winona station, two miles east, crashed into the rear of another freight train standing on the Pennsylvania tracks in this place. The caboose and three other cars were smashed to pieces and thrown across tracks, blocking traffic several hours. No one was hurt.

PLAN AN ATTEMPT TO RESCUE COLON

Gunboat Pinson Has Landed Government Troops on the Coast for an Attack.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Capt Perry of the Battleship Iowa in a cablegram to the navy department this morning confirms the report that the Colombian gunboat Pinson has returned to Colon. It is understood that during her absence from Colon the Pinson landed on the coast five hundred soldiers who will co-operate with Gen. Alban's troops in the proposed attempt to rescue Colon.

BET TEN TO SIX ON TERRY MCGOVERN

New York, Nov. 27.—McGoverns training for his fight with Corbett tomorrow ended this morning. He will take a short run on the road this afternoon just before his departure for Hartford.

Hartford, Nov. 27.—Corbett went out for a run this morning. Before he started he said that he would do no more work until he entered the ring. Sports are arriving on every train. The betting this morning is ten to six in favor of McGovern.

BIG FAT TURKEY FOR THE PRESIDENT

Roosevelt to Have a Family Dinner on Thanksgiving Day and Will Attend Church Service.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—President Roosevelt's first gift turkey for Thanksgiving day arrived today at the White House, and, contrary to the old custom of sending the bird with feathers on, it came ready for the baking pan. This will be followed by about six or seven other turkeys and a large amount of wild game.

The president is not a believer in large Thanksgiving parties and will dine with his family, save for some chance guest or intimate friend. At this dinner will be two merry little faces that are absent except on occasions of this sort. These are two young children of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Archibald and the baby Quentin, who ordinarily have a much earlier dinner than 7:30, usually eating upstairs.

With a care for the old-time reverence in which the day is held, President Roosevelt will go to the little Dutch Reform church, where he is a regular attendant. Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the service at St. John's Church.

President Roosevelt will follow the rule of presenting the White House attaches with turkeys.

The members of the cabinet with few exceptions will dine with their families, without guests. Secretary of State Hay and his family are in mourning this year. Secretary Gage, too, will have a sad Thanksgiving day, for last year Mrs. Gage was with him. Secretary Root, in company with Mrs. Root and Miss Root is now in New York, and will return to Washington late on Thursday.

BIG CROWDS CHEER ADMIRAL SCHLEY

Rear Admiral the Center of Genuinely Enthusiastic Demonstration in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27.—Rear Admiral Schley, who with Mrs. Schley arrived here today to remain until tomorrow as the guest of Colonel A. K. McClure, was the center of an enthusiastic demonstration on his arrival. More than a thousand people were congregated in the station to see the Admiral, and when he stepped from the train the crowd sent up a wild cheer. The people massed around him and it was with much difficulty that his police opened a passageway for him to leave the station.

TURKEYS FOUND TO BE PLENTY

The Thanksgiving Bird
Is Worth a Shilling
Per Pound.

MANY GIVE THANKS

Various Religious Services and Family Gatherings in Janesville.

SOME SOCIETY EVENTS

The season of Thanksgiving activity is upon us once more and preparations for the celebration of the New England holiday are complete.

The day when people assemble in churches, homes and other places to give thanks for the blessings of the year, when the rich and prosperous give freely of their store to those fellow beings whom fortune has not favored, when families unite and societies and clubs of all kinds gather when the hearty handshake and the pleasant greeting is given, the day when turkey is the king of birds, will be celebrated here in all its fullness.

Turkeys Are Plenty

According to the reports of market men no one should be without the usual turkey this year or any of the Thanksgiving delicacies. While it is true that many articles of food are a little higher than last year, yet the difference in price is small.

There is no difference in the price of turkeys, the price charged being a shilling a pound which is about the standard price year in and year out. Turkeys are plenty this year but in the main they are poor, although there are some exceptions. The weather has been against fattening them for gobblers thrive best in cold bleak weather.

Markets Busy Places

For the past two days the groceries and meat markets have been busy places. Everywhere is the hustle and bustle of those who are preparing for the event, either in selling or buying all that goes to make a Thanksgiving dinner.

Yesterday was the beginning of the heavy trade and turkeys, spring chickens, cranberries, sweet potatoes and other Thanksgiving essentials had a large sale. There is an unusually good supply of the out-of-season delicacies, lettuce, radishes and cucumbers, at about the usual prices. Celery is white and crisp. Fruit and nuts are comparatively cheap.

Family Gatherings

As usual the day will be most generally observed with family gatherings around the dinner table and in the season of thankfulness and rejoicing, the poor will not be forgotten for several church societies as well as private individuals, have made arrangements to furnish dinners for families who are unable to buy Thanksgiving treats for themselves.

The schools closed this afternoon for the balance of the week and tomorrow all places of business will be closed for at least half a day. People will find amusement which pleases them best, at the skating rink, the foot ball park, the bowling alleys or in the quiet of the home. It will be a great day at the skating rink and the bowling alleys will be crowded all day.

Special Religious Service

The religious significance of the day will not be forgotten and special services will be held in many of the churches. The Baptist, Congregational, Presbyterian and Methodist churches will unite in a union service at the Presbyterian church at 11 o'clock. Rev. James Churn, pastor of the First M. E. church will preach the Thanksgiving sermon and there will be a special musical program, appropriate to the occasion. The parishes of Trinity and Christ churches will also hold a union service at Christ church at 10 o'clock.

No special observances will be made at the Y. M. C. A. building but an effort will be made to have it unusually cheerful and homelike for the young men who are away from home.

Many will celebrate Thanksgiving by tripping the light fantastic. The Odd Fellows Social and Beneficial club will give their annual banquet and dance for all Odd Fellows and their families at East Side Odd Fellows hall this evening. The supper will be served at six o'clock and dancing will follow.

Tomorrow night the annual party of the St. Louis Golf club will bring the day's festivities to a close at Assembly hall. Smith's orchestra will furnish the music and the party will be one of the brilliant society events of the season.

TAKE SOLEMN OATH TO KILL MISS STONE

Brigands Have Sent a Messenger, Saying That Ransom Must Be Paid or Before Christmas.

Buda Pesth, Nov. 27.—A Sofia dispatch says that the brigands who hold Miss Stone have sent a messenger saying that they have taken a solemn oath to kill Miss Stone, the missionary. If a full ransom is not paid by Christmas.

DAMP WEATHER GOOD FOR TOBACCO

THE WEED IS IN CASE AND BE-ING TAKEN FROM POLES.

Dealers and Growers Are Far Apart in Their Estimates of the Value of the Crop—Some Purchases Made at From Eight to Ten Cents—
Tobacco News and Notes.

The 1901 tobacco crop is a sticker to both growers and dealer, when the question of price enters into the controvery. The dealers claim that the goods are not worth the price demanded by the grower and the grower says there is a shortage of Wisconsin and the goods must come to be in demand in the eastern market. So far the dealer and grower are so far apart in their views that very little buying has been done.

The recent damp weather brought a small portion of the tobacco in case and allowed it to be taken from the poles. A great portion of the early crop while short is of a pretty good quality, free from rust and hall cut, while a good percentage of the late tobacco, which was chilled by the frosts is very poor.

The dealers are all anxious to secure the crop if it can be bought at a price that will allow them a margin for handling it. A number of buyers have been out the last few days getting samples of the tobacco that has been removed from the poles and in some cases crops have been purchased at prices ranging from 8 to 10 cents.

There has not been the rush this year among the dealers to get this year's crop that marked the buying in the past, but no doubt later in the season when the tobacco is stripped and in shape to handle it will all be bought up. Considerable trading is being done in 1900 and all dealers who have any in storage realize that it is as good as gold dollars. A number of eastern buyers have been through the market during the last week but are confining their operations mostly to old goods.

No large sales are reported this week although a number of small lots have been disposed of by local dealers.
Farmers are beginning to talk seriously of trying the shade grown tobacco next year to see if it will be a success in this climate. It will not cost a large sum to fix up the covering for a small piece and if the results are anything like they have been in other places where the experiment has been tried the increased value of the leaf will more than pay the farmer for his outlay. Another feature that recommends the plan strongly to the grower is the fact that hail will not cut the crop to pieces just at the time when it is ready for harvest. The advantages in favor of this plan are numerous, the only thing not in its favor is the cost of putting up the shades. The covering when once up will last for years so that the cost is really not so very heavy.

Quite a satisfactory business seems to have been done during the past week, although no large transactions of any kind are to be reported. To judge from the demand nearly all middle sized and smaller factories are in need of a constant supply with the result that the jobbing trade in leaf was never in a fairer condition.
And everything sells, and for many fancy types that are either too high priced or too scarce, substitutes are made to do service. In New England leaf, as predicted in this place months ago, the darker and heavier leaf has the call now that the light wrappers have disappeared. The factories with their ever increasing output, must have wrappers, and if they cannot get what they want they must take what they can get. The chances are that all of the remnants of the New England crop, no matter what their color and quality, will be absorbed before the close of the year.
The Wisconsin is even in stronger demand, and but for the price all would have moved out of first hands by this time. Jobbers think the price too prohibitory for them to handle it, but when they get through with the Onodaga they will have to have some of it anyhow. Nor is the Pennsylvania, State seed or Ohio leaf neglected. A fair trade is being done in all of these in smaller lots. The transactions in domestic leaf during the week aggregate about 2,000 boxes.—U. S. Tobacco Journal.

The 1900 Wisconsin leaf is still in demand, and the transactions amounted to 1,000 cases, of which J. Friedman & Co., of Chicago, are reported to have secured 600. When it is considered how the market has been secured for the last year's leaf, the sale of 1,000 cases indicates a lot of riding and shows how much this leaf is in demand. The movement of the new crop is awaiting the advent of casing weather. So far the weather has been so dry that the tobacco has not been in a condition to examine and buying has therefore not commenced. As this crop is known to be shorter than that of last year and its quality uncertain, it is certain that when casing weather arrives there will be considerable riding and much competition to secure the better portion of the crop.

The damp weather so necessary to bring the tobacco hanging in the curling sheets into "case" or pliable sheets into "case" or pliable prevailed for a few days during the week, and gave the growers an opportunity to examine the crop and some riding for this purpose is being done.

Buying might doubtless ensue if agreement can be reached regarding prices. So far the buying in the southern growing counties has been confined to the American Cigar company, whose men have been working the Rio section during the week.
Several hundred acres have been contracted for at prices ranging from 8

JANESVILLE'S NEW CITY HALL

The new city hall when completed will be a building that Janesville can justly feel proud of, and one that will last for years without any large amount of repairs being necessary.
The building from the time the first trench was dug for the foundation, up to the present time, has been built on honor, and outside builders and architects who have inspected the work have had nothing but praises for the way the construction has been carried on.

The building is going up rapidly and the walls have now reached a height of four courses of stone above the second story. The window frames for the second story are about all in place and the stone for the balance of the second story are all ready for setting.

The contractors estimate that about and 24 to 10 and 24 for delivery in the bundle.—Edgerton Reporter.

At the present rate the 1900 Wisconsin crop is being taken in eastern market by the manufacturers, fears are already expressed that the entire crop will be absorbed long before the extraordinary demand for it ceases. It has long been understood that the supply was away short of the usual offerings of Wisconsin leaf and the far-seeing manufacturers who loaded up early are especially fortunate ones.
The additional price demanded has proven no embarrassment to a ready sale for the unusual quality of the goods more than compensated. The record made for Wisconsin leaf this season will do much to break down the prejudice that our tobacco must be handled between certain limits and hereafter the trade will be willing to admit the merits of goods will prove the governing price. One fact, however, stands out prominently which is the local markets are now more bare of old leaf than any time within the past ten years.—Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter.

SUPPOSED DISEASES OF WOMEN.
Long stories could be told regarding the outcome of mistakes in diagnosis made by physicians in the matter of diseases of women. Stomach and bowel troubles of long standing, chronic constipation, resulting finally in intimation of the intestines have been the cause of headaches, "bilious" feeling, down pains and irregularities more often than have derangement of the female system. The effect is lack of energy; pain resembling that caused by uterine prolapse; a melancholy view of life and its affairs; headache;
nausea upon rising in the morning. All symptoms easily to be mistaken for those caused by female diseases. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and Herb Laxative Compound gives instant relief. Sold by all druggists in 50 cent and $1.00 bottles, but never in bulk. We will be glad to send you a trial bottle and a very interesting little booklet on stomach troubles, if you will mention your symptoms. Pepsin

A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.
Mr. H. H. Black, the well known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so had have the attacks been that we feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucous and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy, for it contains no opium, or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by People's Drug Company and three weeks longer will be needed to get the building all enclosed for the winter. They will then knock off work until spring and the weather becomes warm enough to allow the building to be plastered.

The clock tower will not be built this fall, but will be left for the spring season when it will be finished and a $750 Seth Thomas clock with four dials installed. The building has a frontage of 101 feet and 4 inches on Jackson street and 69 feet on Wall street and will when completed cost the city $49,004.47. Ten thousand cubic feet of Boreo sandstone and half a million or more brick will be used in the walls. An average of fifty men have been employed on the job since it was started which means that a considerable portion of the contract price has been spent in this city.

The heating specifications call for 3,000 square feet or 9,000 lineal feet of radiation. The boiler is to be 48 inches in diameter and 13 feet 6 inches long, with a fire-box 56 inches long, 45 inches high and 42 inches wide. Everything about the building is to be the best that money can buy so that when completed it will be a city hall second to none of its size in the county. Mr.
Peter Lutz has personally supervised the cutting of the different stones that have gone into the building and so far there has not been a single misfit. Mr. William Rowson, of the firm of James Rowson & Son, has the personal supervision of the building in the absence of his father and is always pleased to give any desired information about the building.

IMPORTATION OF INFECTED HORSES

Wisconsin and Minnesota State Boards of Health Will Cooperate in the Matter.

An opinion was sent from the office of the attorney general Saturday to the effect that it is the duty of the state live stock sanitary commission to prevent the importation into this state of any horses infected with glanders. The opinion was given in response to an inquiry from the commission as to whether or not the Wisconsin authorities could co-operate with the Minnesota board for the inspection of western horses and could spend some $300 for this purpose.

Some time ago the Wisconsin state board received a letter from Dr. S. D.
Brinkhall of the Minnesota state board of health asking the co-operation of the Wisconsin authorities in the inspection of western horses thought to be infected with glanders and about to be imported into the state of Minnesota and Wisconsin. The idea was for the boards of the two states to work with the federal inspector at South St. Paul and the probable annual cost to Wisconsin was to be about $500. The state board of Wisconsin was also asked to furnish one inspector to assist the state veterinarian of Minnesota to inspect western horses.

The letter the state board turned over to the attorney general asking him for his opinion as to the power of the board to enter into an agreement with the authorities of Minnesota in the manner explained in the letter.
In his answer the attorney general says that according to the statute providing for the suppression of glanders in horses it is the duty of the board to prevent the introduction into this state of such animals as the board has reason to think are infected with the disease. It is in the power and duty to believe that western horses contract the disease.

By and with the consent of the governor the board can prevent the importation of horses from any infected district into the state under such regulation as the board may establish. The attorney general is of the opinion that the state veterinarian has authority to call to his assistance a veterinarian to help him in the inspection. It is doubtful whether the board can enter into an agreement with the Minnesota authorities as to the expenditure of the amount referred to, $300 a year, but the state veterinarian can hire a man to assist him in making necessary examinations of animals.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years we had supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Sci-disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured

ARMIES IN VERY HOT FIGHT

Colombian Rivals Meet and Clash at Barbaccas.

THE LIBERALS IN RETREAT.

With Ammunition Exhausted They Head for Colon, Where a Decisive Engagement is Expected—One Hundred Killed and Wounded in Battle.

Colon, Nov. 27.—Government troops and the Liberal army met in a desperate engagement at Barbaccas and both sides claim the victory. One hundred killed and wounded is the casualty record of the government forces, while the Liberal losses are not known. Their ammunition exhausted, the Liberals retreated in the direction of this city, and they are expected to camp at Monkey Hill cemetery, one mile beyond the limits, where a decisive engagement is believed certain in the morning. General Alban, in command of the conservative forces, followed his retreating foe part of the way, but he halted his men at Taverilla, where the troops are resting. The engagement interrupted traffic on the Isthmus railway. One train from Panama was nearly six hours late in reaching this city. Fighting was in progress on the Barbaccas bridge when the train approached, and it was impossible to continue the journey until the combatants got out of the way.

While it was believed that an engagement was in progress, no definite news reached this city until the belated train arrived at 4:40 o'clock p. m. Passengers, including a number of marines of the Iowa, witnessed a great part of the combat, which was stubbornly contested on both sides. The Liberals appeared to have the advantage when the shortage of ammunition compelled their retreat. The retreat was made in good order, and it is said that the opponents of the government have replenished their ammunition supplies and are ready to try issues again with Alban's troops. The Liberals admit having lost sixty men in killed and wounded, and that among the number killed was Colonel Oyas, but they claim that the government loss was over 150 men in killed and wounded. An armored train which went over the railroad yesterday, having on board Captain Perry of the Iowa, and machine guns, and flying the American flag, was sent as a demonstrative force and will not be continued daily. Passenger trains, however, will still carry guards. Transit across the Isthmus is open again.

Marines Arrive for Iowa. The Panama railroad steamer Orizaba, from New York Nov. 19, which arrived at Colon in the morning, had on board about 100 marines who are to relieve the time expired men of the United States battle ship Iowa now at Panama. The marines were embarked on board a train and were taken to Panama.

Colombia and Venezuela at War. Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 27.—The Colombian government has issued a decree declaring that diplomatic relations with Venezuela have ceased, and that the Colombian legation in Caracas has been withdrawn. Senator Concha, minister of war, says that the government has 80,000 men armed for action.

Provisional Date for Coronation. London, Nov. 27.—The provisional date fixed for the coronation of King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra is June 25. A royal banquet will be given that evening at Buckingham palace, followed by a reception at which princes and princesses of foreign royal families, members of the special diplomatic missions, members of the cabinet, and a few of the higher nobility, will be present.

Miss King Is Still Healthy. New York, Nov. 27.—The experiments of Dr. George D. Barney of Brooklyn, who seventeen days ago inoculated Miss Emma King with germs from a consumptive cow, have so far materially strengthened the theory of Professor Koch that consumptive germs are not transferable between animal and man. The young woman has not yet shown a sign of the dread disease.

Break Into a Private Bank. Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 27.—An attempt was made to rob the private bank of Julius Courtz at Wanatah, near this city. The thieves succeeded in gaining entrance into the vault and broke off the time lock on the safe. It is not known whether the safe was robbed or not, as it cannot be opened. A Chicago expert is at work on it.

Sugar Output Is Increased. Washington, Nov. 27.—Statistics as to the sugar production of the world, forwarded to the state department by Consul Diederich at Bremen, show that there was an increase this year of 351,000 tons of beet sugar and of 109,573 tons of cane sugar over that of the year before.

Killed His Business Partner. Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 27.—A Adipatch has been received from Sheridan, Wyo., saying that C. Frank McLaughlin was shot and instantly killed by Lew Hartsough, his partner, in a lively battle there, after a quarrel concerning the management of the business. Hartsough is in custody.

Safe Blowers at Work. Newark, O., Nov. 27.—Robbers blew open a safe at New Lexington, Perry county, and got over $100.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

A Cure For It—Not a Patent Cure—All Nor a Modern Miracle But Simply a Rational Cure for Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, as a rule, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely certain to cure every dyspeptic and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is, that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it, that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, gives refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food and take these tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system, are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body. Any druggist will tell you that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give universal satisfaction.

A Great Medicine.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Phillips, of Potomac, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux, I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not the praise of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by People's Drug Co. and King's Pharmacy.

B. Washington Entertained President.

It is now remembered that in December, 1893, the President of the United States and the governor of Alabama were entertained socially at Tuskegee, Ala., by Mr. and Mrs. Booker T. Washington. The New Orleans Picayune said at the time: "No white hosts or hostesses could have been more courteous in attending to and more thoughtful in forestalling every want of their guests than were these refined and educated Africans."

An Early Chemical Factory.

The first chemical factory opened in this country was in Salem, Mass., in 1811. At first great objection was made to the establishment of the factory, the persons living near claiming that the fumes of the chemicals poisoned the air and made life intolerable.

Statistics on Prussian Suicides.

Of the 6,355 Prussians who committed suicide in 1899, no fewer than 3,655 chose hanging, while 1,238 drowned themselves and 828 shot themselves. Poisoning and jumping down a precipice came next, with 250 and 115 cases respectively. Ninety-five allowed railway trains to pass over them.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The Kitties are in town today. This afternoon a matinee performance in process and this evening they will appear again at the Myers Grand. The Buffalo Courier has the following to say of the company. "Canada's crack military organization, the 48th Gordon Highlanders Regimental Band, attracted a splendidly large and distinctly fashionable audience to Convention hall last night. Nearly every seat in the immense auditorium was filled. At the afternoon performance, Bandmaster Slatter and his fine body of musicians were also greeted by a most gratifying assemblage.

"In their Scottish caps and kilts, the members of the band present a striking and novel appearance; and in musical no less than military discipline they are uncommonly well drilled. The individual players are more proficient than those of the average civilian organization, while, as a whole, the band is one of the best of its kind that has ever been heard in this vicinity."

"As unique and interesting as the organization itself was the character of the programs given. Instrumental features which seem to afford the audience special opportunity for display of righteous patriotism and exhibition of friendliness toward Great Britain were interspersed with Scotch dances and stirring barrack room ballads. The choral work was really fine. In addition to their various other accomplishments, the members of the band are gifted with voices of beautiful quality and they sing with taste and intelligence. Some of the choruses given were encored three or four times. In fact the concert last evening, from the first number of the program to the last, kept the audience in the highest pitch of enthusiasm."

"A Secret Warrant" with Willis Granger in the star role, will be the attraction at the Myers Grand on Friday night the 29th. The company is managed by M. H. Hanley & Son, who also direct the tour of Robert B. Mantell and Mr. Granger will have the support of some clever actors, selected by the above mentioned managers, which itself is a guarantee of excellence.

Lewis Morrison's spectacular version of "Faust" added by new scenery, electrical, mechanical and pyrotechnical effects, a supporting company of unusual strength and a chorus of powerful voices, will be an early local attraction. Money has been freely spent to make this season's production the finest and most elaborate one of "Faust" ever seen on a tour, and is a bigger success than ever before in its twenty seasons in a financial way.

Diary of the Hired Girl.

Nov. 10.—I am the femme de cuisine vulgarly known by plaheads as the mechanic de cuisine. Some people have an idea that my work is easy and overpaid. I have never suffered from too much leisure nor has the wealth I have acquired led me to a life of ease and luxury, nor to vulgar display, though you should see my new hat. It took several weeks' wages, but the conductor on the street car, when I entered wearing it, dropped as if he had been shot.

Nov. 11.—The man who owns the house (subject to the mortgage) remarked last night that he thought I ought to take care of the furnace. I didn't say much but when I lit the gas in the front room, I scratched the match on the delicately tinted wall paper behind the picture called "Spring." It left a long black mark but it was concealed, of course. Left the furnace open last night as I did not seem to be doing much when I went to bed.

Nov. 12.—Ice melted out doors all around the house for the space of ten feet. They said the furnace did it. In the night.

Nov. 13.—While making bread this morning, I went to answer the door bell for a man who was trying to sell a receipt to get rid of blackheads. I finally turned him away, but in going through the house, I handled all the door knobs and when the man came home he got his hand on about all of them and his remarks were anything but flattering to my nationality.

Discovered today that sweeping the dust down the register saves gathering it up. Shall report this to the union as a valuable find.

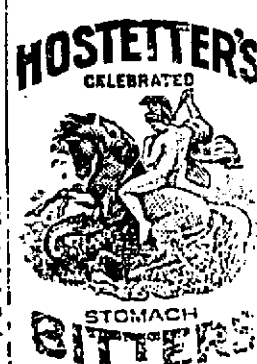

Nov. 13.—Have noticed that if the gas stove burns long enough it heats the kitchen. In case of too severe heat open the windows.

John came and sat around in the kitchen for two hours while I was getting dinner. Dinner was one hour late and I was sorry to see that the folks who were going out for the evening seemed to feel much impatience.

I believe I shall quit this job. Have been here too long. People are beginning to act as if they owned the place.

Nov. 14.—Paid off today and had enough money to buy another hat. The mistress is not in it with me in style.

Nov. 11.—Have been here too long, four weeks today. Left this evening.

Fish Choke! Pawpaw River.

A report received in St. Joseph, Mich., from Watervliet, Mich., says that thousands of perch have been driven up the Pawpaw River, which empties from Pawpaw Lake, by the recent storms, until the millrace at Watervliet, half a mile up the stream, is a mass of dead fish. The fish were so closely packed together on the surface of the water that it was impossible for a rowboat to pass. Men are dipping up the fish in buckets and using them for fertilizer. It is estimated that over 300,000 perch collected in the channel were unable to get out.

Sheriff Is Short $11,885.

Public Examiner Pope, in a report of examination books filed with Governor Van Sant, of Minnesota, says that Sheriff Megard of Hennepin county has withheld funds amounting to $11,885. The sheriff has turned over about $9,000 and has been indicted on eleven charges, running from perjury to larceny. The trial of the sheriff will be held early next month. Meantime pressure will be brought upon the governor to have him removed. The examiner says the sheriff did not overlook any chance to get money from the county.

Smothered in a Bran Chute.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—James Frank, a laborer for the Chicago Sugar Refining Company, Taylor and Beach streets, was smothered to death in a chute through which bran is shifted from the fifth to the fourth floor. He was caught in the stream of bran as it rushed to the opening of the tube. His feet sank into the slot, and he was covered with the dusty material. It was some time before help was secured, and when he was dug out he was dead.

Elbert Waller Released.

New York, Nov. 27.—Elbert Waller, who was arrested after the arrest of Mrs. Dale, and charged with statutory offense, was released from custody last night after a hearing before Recorder Stanton in Hoboken. The recorder found there was no evidence against Waller and ordered his release.

There are now indications that the state may not be able to procure evidence against Mrs. Dale to hold her on the charge of murdering her child.

Censures Mine Officials.

Telluride, Colo., Nov. 27.—The coroner's jury which investigated the Smuggler-Union mine disaster, in which twenty-five men lost their lives, returned a verdict censuring some of the minor officials at the mine for not promptly closing the entrance to the bullion tunnel after the fire originated.

Say King Wants a Divorce.

Vienna, Nov. 27.—The Hungarian papers allege that King Alexander of Servia desires to divorce Queen Draga, in order that he may marry his sister-in-law, Helene Benyevitch, and that this accounts for Queen Draga's recent hysterical outbursts.

JO A. M. VALENTINE—Janesville—Rock County—Wisconsin.

You are notified that the undersigned, Fred Rosenberger, of the County of Janesville, County of Rock and State of Wisconsin, on the 5th day of December, 1900, while on the premises owned and occupied by you and described as lot number (1), in block number twenty-six (26) of the original plat of the village of Janesville, at your invitation, received and suffered severe personal injuries, to wit: a rupture or hernia on the left side, also such injuries as to cause atrophy or shrinking of the muscles on the left side of the back and other manifestations of disease, and other injuries.

That such injuries were received by the breaking through and falling into cesspool or catch basin situated on the west side of the dwelling house on said premises, the cover to which catch basin or cesspool was so negligently constructed and was, through your fault and negligence, in such want of repair and so decayed as to render the same unsafe, unsound, insufficient and dangerous.

That by reason of the said injuries the undersigned has suffered great pain in body and mind and has been disabled from attending to his business, suffering pecuniary loss thereby, and he claims of you for said injuries and damages in the sum of fifteen hundred and dollars ($15,000.00), and that as the said injuries were caused by your negligence as aforesaid, and the sum thereof is claimed of you.

Dated October 21, 1901.

FRED ROSENBERGER.

The original notice is on file in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court at Janesville, Rock County, Wisconsin.

STATE OF WISCONSIN—County Court for Rock County.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular term of the County Court to be held in and for said county, at the court house, in the city of Janesville, in said county, on the first Tuesday following the 7th day of Jan., 1902, at 9 o'clock a. m., the following matter will be heard and considered:

That by petition of John S. Rockwell, a son and an heir at law of Leander J. Rockwell, deceased, to have the court ascertain and determine the descent, upon the death of said Leander J. Rockwell, of the estate of said Leander J. Rockwell, in said county, and known as lot eight (8) in Scheller's addition to Janesville and the persons and the names of the persons to whom the same descended upon his death. A. Dated Nov. 4th, 1901.

By the Court, J. W. SALE, County Judge.

Teething Babies

WITH Coated Tongues

Laxakola

THE GREAT TONGUE LAXATIVE.

It is the best and most effective laxative for children. BEST because it is safe and made entirely of harmless ingredients. BEST because it is non-irritating and never grips or causes pain or irritation. BEST because it is sure and never fails. BEST because "Children like it and ask for it."

It is a dangerous thing to give little babies violent remedies that rack and rend their little bodies. DON'T DO IT—give them Laxakola. For constipation, coated tongue, simple colds and fevers it is invaluable.

LADIES.—Laxakola acts as a tonic to the whole female system, strengthening the organs and purifying the blood. It will cure the most confirmed case of constipation. With your lowest and stomach free from reflux and impurities, and your blood pure and rich, backaches, headaches, weak nerves, dizziness, muddy, yellow complexion will vanish, and you will feel and look strong, healthy and vigorous. At druggists, 25c. and 50c., or free sample of THE LAXAKOLA CO., 132 Nassau St., N. Y., or 356 Dearborn St., Chicago.

THANKSGIVING.

"We thank Thee, oh Lord for 1,095 square meals during the past year. For a good bed to sleep in 365 nights. For a warm coat in winter, and a cool coat in summer. For plenty of good water to drink the year round."

That would be a good thanksgiving prayer for a horse or a pet dog, and yet the simple reminder is more of a thanksgiving offering, than some hearts will offer. What does Thanksgiving day, 1901, signify?

To the nation it means more than any preceding anniversary. Out of the turmoil of strife and the many difficult questions that have presented at every step, and winning confidence and respect on every hand. Critics have been silenced, and the people are more nearly a unit in purpose today, than at any previous time in the history of the land.

The ordeal of grief through which the nation passed, is hallowed by a sacred memory, and an ambition to see perfected the mission of a martyred president.

Prosperity that knows no equal has blessed the country in every nook and corner, and the outlook for the future is full of hope and bright anticipation. The land is a goodly land, and like the Canaan of old, contains milk and honey for every honest tiller.

The state has occasion for gratitude. It has been free from epidemic or great disaster. It is peopled with a class of contented and happy people, whose industry and thrift have contributed to personal comfort and general welfare. While the political atmosphere may be a little disturbed, and the horizon somewhat hazy, there is no occasion for fear. The people of the state are capable of self-government and whatever they will to accomplish, will be for the best good of the commonwealth.

The city can afford to take a day off and say "thank you." It is the best city in the west for a home, and never better than today. The government of the city is as good as the people care to have it, and it is excellent in many respects. The schools are in good condition and a credit to the municipality. More miles of good streets have been constructed than in any previous year. Sewerage is somewhere in sight. Public improvements have been encouraged and the work is well in hand.

The morals of the town may not be perfect, but most of the inhabitants have kept out of Waupun. Vice has not increased and virtue has been promoted.

The business of the place is healthy and wholesome, no serious failures have occurred and gains have been possible in almost every line. People have been unusually contented, and but few have left the city to better their condition.

General good health has been the rule, and not the exception and Oak Hill has not been extensively patronized.

The individual home will not pass the day without recognition and as families come together to crack nuts and jokes, as they gather around the old table made sacred by pleasant memories. Much will be found to be thankful for.

Death has severed ties in some homes; and in others suffering has left its impress, and where these conditions exist the day may contain more sorrow than gladness, but these experiences are common to the lot of humanity and they are also the exception and not the rule. The Power that permits the sorrow and suffering, has a tender side that is full of comfort and consolation.

The homes of Janesville are most of them happy homes, and it is well on Thanksgiving day to be thankful.

The individual heart, whose relations are closer than the home, has occasion for Thanksgiving. The man or the woman who can look back through the year without recognizing the blessings that the days and months have contained, is an object of pity. Greatness may not have been realized, and wealth may not have been obtained, but the year has been rich in opportunity and crowned with blessings.

The day should be a day of genuine gladness and thanksgiving, and will be to every appreciative heart.

"HOLY GHOST AND US" ABROAD.

"F. W. Sandford and his seven followers in the Holy Ghost and Us Society of Shiloh, Me., held what was announced to be 'probably the last meeting' in Shiloh last night. In the course of the day there were several meetings, but Prophet Sandford was not present at any of them. At the close of the meeting last night, it was learned from one of the 'students' of the new creed that 'Brother Sandford is in seclusion today; he is in communion with God.'

"Brother Holland, the second in authority in the society, said there was nothing definite to say as to their next move, but that when Brother Sandford had completed his commission they would probably be instructed."

"—Exchange. This is the sort of lunacy that infects the country today, parading under the cloak of religious zeal. There are a lot of shallow brained one-idea people who become infatuated with the nonsense, and while they are not crazy enough to be dangerous, they are a menace to the welfare of society."

The age of miracles and of prophecies has long since passed. There was a time when both were necessary to advance and hold the interests of Christianity, but under the enlightenment of the twentieth century, reason and common sense have discovered that the supernatural is too intangible for the average mind to comprehend, and that this kind of power is not delegated to humanity, to be used in either prophetic vision or miraculous display.

The modern prophet and Divine healer may be honest enough; so is the socialist and the anarchist. A man may be intensely earnest as a leader, and all the more dangerous.

Honesty is always commendable, but not always a safe proposition to follow. The disciples of Dowle are so impressed with the honesty of the new Elijah, that when he tells them that he is lending money to the Lord, they are willing to trust him as agent, and when he suggests that the new city of Zion has no need of a cemetery, they believe him. But the money never comes back, and somebody has to bury the dead.

It is a sad comment on the intelligence of the age, but nevertheless true, that there is no class of fanatics so near the border line of insanity, as the men and women who are captivated by the multitude of new faiths that at the present time are in such a flourishing condition.

The restlessness of the age is doubtless responsible for these conditions, and like greenbackism, Coxeyism, Debsism, and Bryanism. In the political world, they will have their day, and time alone will effect a cure. People not only enjoy being humbugged, but they are a great deal like a flock of sheep. An energetic bell weather can lead them into almost any kind of a pasture. It is well for humanity that this class of susceptible people seldom gain the ascendancy. If they ever do, Texas will be a Paradise. "The Holy Ghost and Us" Society, comes a little nearer blasphemy than anything that has yet developed.

Senator Quarles spent a part of the summer with the noble red man. He discovered that our forefathers lack ambition and suggests that they be made to work, the same as other sons of Adam. The Indian never had very much love for work, and it is doubtful if the senator's suggestion will strike him with very much favor. It is currently reported that all good Indians are dead.

The Beaver Dam girl who engaged in a horsewhipping melee in New York succeeded in giving the state a new kind of notoriety. Wisconsin beer enjoys a world wide reputation but the courage and muscle of her fair damsel has just come to the surface. Beaver Dam appears to be strictly in it.

The regularity with which the A Boston man committed suicide by biting off his tongue. There are a good many people whose tongues have caused other people to commit suicide and some victims expire from the effects of that tired feeling that an overdose of tongue produces.

"Your Uncle Ike" is said to have 6,000 bushels of potatoes, home grown and hand picked. That's better property than a flock of newspapers.

The quiet that reigns at the capitol indicates that the governor and his busy secretary are having a love feast. The lieutenant governor should be invited.

trains are moving through the state indicates that Contractor Strange is not interfering with the marts of trade.

PRESS COMMENT

Oshkosh Northwestern: It is a matter worthy of note that with all the mistakes made by the deer hunters in the northern woods there has been no case yet recorded where anyone has shot a deputy game warden. Either the wardens are discreet enough to remain back of the firing line or else the hunters are more careful when the deputies are around.

Sheboygan Telegram: Haugen's dlatrhe has not received the disapproval of his chief. It still holds good.

Galesville Republican: Wisconsin promises to be the hottest political hot in the Union during the next twelve months. It will determine whether conservative Republicanism or radical Populism shall rule.

Hartford Press: It seems to be becoming more generally understood that La Follette and Spooner will not make good running mates, and when it comes to a choice the people will not give up Spooner. The governor with Stephenson thrown in will not compensate for the great sacrifice the loss of Senator Spooner would be.

Had Governor La Follette exercised more tact in his dealings with the legislature there would have been no necessity for the people making a choice.

Milwaukee News: The Colombian armistice of three weeks on account of the rain may not have been owing so much to a desire of the combatants to keep in out of the wet as to their inability to make good time in sprinting on heavy roads.

Evening Wisconsin: When a deer hunter returns with game, the carcasses may testify only to his prowess in dickering with a man who knows how to shoot.

Milwaukee Journal: Our esteemed editorial brethren might as well cease trying to explain the La Follette special train. It was not only in bad taste, but also against the law, for a candidate to accept corporate favors from railroads.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Suppose we end this irritating controversy about who was the first astronomer by agreeing that Abel saw a lot of them when Cain smote him with a loaded gaspipe.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The Marquette Star insists that the next legislature should shorten the deer season to about three days, declaring that even that "would give plenty of opportunity for all who want to commit suicide, and it would take a great strain off the public."

Appleton Crescent: How many people have noticed that no portrait of a man has ever appeared on a United States coin or a picture of a woman on the postage stamps? An observing editor remarks on these facts that they constitute the reason why we lick the stamps and squeeze the coin.

Racine Journal: Has Wisconsin's representative at Washington maintained at a $2,000 salary to secure the passage of that swamp land indemnity bill, ever been duly enrolled as a loyalist?

DEATH OF MISS TROWBRIDGE

She was a Teacher Who Was Well-Known at State School for Blind. A telegram was received this morning by Miss Butt, one of the teachers at the State School for the Blind, announcing the death of her friend, Miss Louise Trowbridge, of Viroqua. Miss Trowbridge was a teacher who had twice substituted at the state school to fill temporary vacancies. She spent the month of October and a part of November at the school and started home about ten days ago, suffering from a severe cold, but was not seriously ill. The cause of her sudden death is not stated in the dispatch.

To the few Janesville people who enjoyed the pleasure of her acquaintance the news will come as a shock, while to those who knew her well, a sense of personal loss will be keenly felt. She was a bright, intelligent, active woman, possessing a Christian character and all the graces of Christian womanhood, that won for her a place in the hearts of all who knew her. Her presence in the school was an inspiration to child life, and the eyes that could not look into her face, recognized in the gentle hearted woman a friend, as well as a teacher. Full of hope and courage, inspired by ambition to accomplish something for humanity, a faithful worker in the church, and a ray of sunshine in the home, she looked into the years with confidence, and while the hand of death has closed a life that promised so much in the way of helpfulness, it may truthfully be said of her that she lived to a purpose, and her memory will be cherished. She lived with her mother at Viroqua, where the remains will probably rest.

Funeral of Mrs. Tochterman. Brief funeral services for the late Mrs. C. Tochterman were held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. A. Palmer, 1 Logan avenue, this morning at nine o'clock. Rev. Robert C. Denison officiating. At the close of the services, the remains were taken to Monroe, which city was the deceased woman's home for over half a century, where the interment took place. The pall bearers were W. J. McIntyre, S. C. Burnham, J. L. Bear, J. G. Wray, Thomas Edden and James Caldwell, all members of W. H. Sargent Post, N. O. 20, G. A. R., the bereaved husband being a veteran of the Grand Army.

WOODMEN'S RALLY AT FOOTVILLE

County Clerk F. P. Starr was at Mag nolia last evening to attend a Woodmen's rally held in the Advent church in that place. A large number of Woodmen from the surrounding country were present and listened to an interesting address by Mr. Starr, given along fraternal lines and touching upon the social features of the organization. S. M. Fisher also gave a short talk on the benefits of the organization. After the addresses the crowd adjourned to the Woodmen hall where supper was served.

FASHIONS IN FURS.

MAGNIFICENCE IS THE KEYNOTE FOR THE WINTER SEASON.

The Ideal Wraps Are Regal Affairs In Sable, Seal and Ermine—Many Novelties In Inexpensive Skins. Lamb and Mink Are Popular.

Fashion has grown into a magnificence almost startling, and furs royally exploit the tendency of the season. A lovely wrap is in purple velvet of three-quarter length with a deep bordering of ermine all down the front and round the hem. The sleeves and zouave are composed entirely of the fur and lined throughout with exquisite net and lace. Lace and chiffon as the lining to exteriors of velvet and fur seem to be the essence of beauty and luxury. However, a most useful all round possession is a wrap made wholly of fur, which does for afternoon, carriage, traveling and evening wear for really cold days, and a black velvet or satin wrap is also of general utility.

SHORT AND THREE-QUARTER COATS.

It is but lately that the authorities on fashion have begun to use all kinds and conditions of skins, and they now realize that many of us wish to be smart and warm at the same time without a large outlay, and, as already said, almost every imaginable skin will be pressed into service this year.

A fur which makes delightful boleros or little sack coats is beaver, and some beautiful pelisses are also made of this skin.

A particularly prominent place is given to caracul and sable, the soft, flat surface of the former being so well adapted to the popular long loose coats, wide sleeves, Louis XVI. coats or short bolero jackets.

The short coat in the first cut is of caracul, with revers of ermine outlined with caracul. The three-quarter length black silk coat tucked and braided is trimmed with rough caracul. There are beautiful velvet cloaks, with enormous collars and vests of skunk. Black caraculs have waistcoats and deep belts of velvet heavily embroidered with gold and silver. Most of the Louis XV. coats are of caracul or Persian lamb, with vest and revers of embroidery in gold, the same forming the inner cuffs at the wrists.

A few fur coats are made with swallow tails, but they are only suited to the wear of very tall women.

The bolero has not left us, though the three-quarter length is certainly the most in favor. As a useful garment this length cannot be beaten, but it never, according to many good

THE OUTSIDE OF A HOUSE.

The Ideal Design Expresses Privacy and Hospitality.

The exterior of a house must be conditioned not only by its interior arrangements, but by various external considerations too often overlooked. The natural characteristics of the location should play an important part. The house should seem a harmonious outgrowth of its surroundings—should grow up out of the rocks or take its place with special reference to the surrounding trees. If it occupies the summit of a hill, it should follow the long low lines that give a sense of stability and security rather than the turreted and belowered outlines that only accentuate the building's comparative insignificance.

In general a country house will do well to emphasize the horizontal lines, while a house in a confined city lot will emphasize the vertical. Otherwise in the country there is too much the effect of the fragments of blockhouses which hopefully cumber a city's outlying districts.

If a house is to occupy a prominent position in a town or village, it must have a corresponding dignity of design.

ARTISTIC RHODE ISLAND PORCH.

A shingled cottage would be an evident absurdity on Fifth avenue, and the same principle holds true in lesser degree on humbler streets.

In the third place, the house must harmonize with its architectural neighbors if brought into close comparison with them. Large grounds or an isolated site brings its own freedom, but a French chateau or a Mexican villa in the midst of an old New England village street would be so incongruous that no charm in the design, per se, would atone for its lack of harmony with its surroundings.

Originality in architecture is a dangerous aim for the average housebuilder. He should strive rather to make the best of the "thing as it is" by just proportion and refinement of detail. The design must also express its purpose. It should not look like a public building. It should have an air of privacy, of domesticity, a word descended from the Latin for house.

Moreover, the design should reveal in a measure the arrangements of the house. For hospitality's sake the main entrance should be and usually is emphasized in the design. The principal staircase can be expressed by an oriel or a window in its landing. The principal rooms will find expression by the emphasis laid upon their windows, by grouping or otherwise.

Among the various fads and fashions that have swept over our domestic architecture none has had so sane and healthful an influence as the so-called "colonial," which still holds sway. Its sobriety, restraint, dignity, beauty of proportion and refinement of detail are along the line of what is best in architecture, and it has exerted a most beneficial influence on American tastes and ideals.

Granted that we have a design whose general proportions are good, its outlines pleasing, no less insistence must be laid upon whatever ornament and finish are added. This may be much or little, as means or taste demand, but it must be good as far as it goes and rightly placed. The little Rhode Island porch here shown, for instance, is a simple thing, but it has style; it adds an air of quaintness and refinement.—Good Housekeeping.

A CRUISER OF 1861.

CAREER OF CAPTAIN SEMMES' FIRST
COMMERCE DESTROYER, SUMTER.Bold Escape Through the Federal Blockade at New Orleans—First Prize on the High Seas—Types of Her Officers and Men.

[Copyright, 1901, by G. L. Kilmer.]

On the closing days of 1861 the Confederate steamer Sumter, the first ship to give the stars and bars to the winds on the high seas, was running for the port of Cadiz. Her money chest was empty, her coal bunkers, and she was crowded with Yankee prisoners taken during her six months' cruise from New Orleans eastward. Within that six months there had been developed on the little Sumter an executive ability, nautical pride and esprit de corps which went to the making of the Alabama's career. Captain Raphael Semmes and J. McIntosh Kell, commander and executive officer of the Sumter, were also the men on the bridge of the Alabama.

The Sumter was not a very promising ship for the work of running blockades, fighting and sailing long cruises when Semmes got hold of her in New Orleans. She was a small scowling propeller of 500 tons, capable of being rigged for a battery of four or five guns, but she carried only five days' fuel. The Confederate naval board rejected the vessel, but Semmes said, "Give me that ship." The Sumter was christened soon after the fall of Fort Sumter and in honor of that victory, yet, lacking every facility for speedy overhauling of a ship, Semmes was two months getting the propeller ready for sea.

As the port of New Orleans was under strict Federal blockade, the wharves were lined with little steamers, and Semmes had his pick in making up the crew. Although there were no fit accommodations for a fighting crew on board the Sumter, the old tars were anxious to suffer and dare any fate just to be loose on the sea with a few guns and the southern flag. Surgeon Galt, Lieutenant of Marines Howell and Midshipmen Armstrong and Wilson sailed with Semmes in the Sumter in June, 1861, and fought with him in the Alabama at Cherbourg in June, 1864.

All told the complement of officers and men on that pygmy cruiser numbered 113. Twenty of the crew proper were marines, and the ship meant to defend her flag to death. For days the Sumter lay at anchor between the New Orleans forts, waiting for a chance to run the blockade. At the edge of one June evening Semmes got word from a scoutboat that the United States steamer Powhatan, which had been lying in the Southwest pass, had gone to sea in chase of strange sail. Calling for pilots familiar with that pass, Semmes waited and waited, and the night wore away. Next morning the Powhatan was again at her station.

In order to be ready another time Semmes sent for a pilot to come on board the Sumter and live until she could get to sea. None would respond, so he sent a peremptory note to the captain of the Pilot's association commanding the presence on his ship of three or four of the most experienced pilots of the bar. The result of Semmes' nerve was that pilots took turns about on board the cruiser, and one Sunday morning, after numerous false alarms, it was suddenly discovered that the blockader Brooklyn had gone to sea in chase. The Brooklyn's trial speed was fourteen knots, and the Sumter was good for nine or ten. At the last moment the pilot then on board declared that he did not know the pass where the Brooklyn had abandoned guard, and Semmes had to wait till he could get a new man. Semmes had resolved to try it alone if the pilots failed him. As soon as the Sumter cleared the bar the Brooklyn was sighted only three or four miles distant. Semmes' lieutenant insisted that the Sumter had no chance in a race with the Brooklyn, and the first hour off the bar seemed to justify his doubts. The best the Sumter could do was nine and a half knots. Volumes of smoke came from the Brooklyn's stacks, and she crowded on all sail. Semmes' ship had the advantage in sails, and he hoped to make the wind his best ally. At the end of half an hour a squall enveloped both ships, but when it cleared the Brooklyn was nearer the Sumter, almost within gunshot. Semmes ordered the paymaster to have his treasure and papers ready to throw overboard, but the engineer reported that the boilers were working better and better every moment. At the same time the breeze favored the cruiser, and little by little she gained on her pursuer till at about half past 3 in the afternoon of June 30 the Brooklyn abandoned the chase and the Sumter was off the Caribbean sea. The first thing after getting out of the danger trap was to lighten ship by throwing overboard a howitzer, which was of no further use now the blockade had been run and was very much in the way.

Semmes' official orders were to "do the greatest possible damage to the enemy's commerce in the shortest time." He steered for one of the chief thoroughfares of trade and aimed for the coast of Brazil. The first alarming "sail ho!" brought to view a Spaniard, but the next, after a gun from the cruiser, hoisted the stars and stripes to her peak. This was the first war prize, first of the redoubtable Semmes, first of the first Confederate cruiser.

She was not much in the way of value, but Semmes recorded in his logbook that she was from the "black Republic" of state of Maine. The colloquy between cruiser captain and Yankee skipper was typical, and Semmes wrote it down. Said the Yankee, "A clap of thunder in a cloudless sky could not have surprised me more than the appearance of the Confederate flag in these seas."

Semmes' soul swelled with pride, and he said to the captain of the pitiful Yankee bark: "My duty is a painful one, to destroy so noble a ship as the Golden Rocket, but I must discharge it without vain regrets, and, as for yourself, you will only have to do, as many thousands have done before you, submit to the fortunes of war. Yourself and your crew will be well treated on board my ship." This said and the valuables and coveted ships' stores transferred to the Sumter, the Golden Rocket was fired, to go up in smoke.

The inflammatory orders and press reports of the time called Semmes a "pirate," but he didn't make the captain and crew of his prizes walk the plank, as in the good old days of Captain Kidd. The disconsolate skipper was invited to mess in the Sumter's wardroom, and the sailors had a mess of their own, with cook and rations, on the same footing as Semmes' own crew.

The Sumter met with adventures too numerous to record, and adventures followed in her wake. On July 4 she captured two brigantines carrying Yankee colors and neutral cargoes. Semmes put prize crews on board and started for Cienfuegos. The sailors of one prize overpowered the guard and got away, the other followed to Cuban ports. On the 5th two more Yankee ships with neutral cargoes were served like the first, and Semmes steered for port, thinking he had done wonders in making five prizes in less than twenty-four hours. But while within Cuban waters he met two barks and a brig coming out under tow. Hoisting the Spanish colors, he let them pass beyond the limits, then turned and took them in, making seven captures assured in two days.

The arrival of the Sumter and her flotilla of prizes at Cienfuegos was telegraphed to Havana, and Semmes got out of the harbor just ahead of United States warships sent to overhauled the cruiser. Using sail when the wind was favorable in order to husband the coal on board, Semmes made the port of Curacao without taking a ship. The kodak had not been invented, but a camera man, one John Smith of New York, captured the Sumter for the New York Illustrated papers. While waiting for recalling and repairs Semmes was called upon by a Venezuelan don to assist in reinstating one De Castro as president of the Venezuelan republic. The parley was long and interesting. Castro wanted Semmes to land him with arms and ammunition on the soil of Venezuela and let the people take him or reject him as the lawful ruler. But Semmes said that he had pledged his faith to a northern daimon and could not stop to flirt with a tropical charmer, so he sailed away for Trinidad. The summer and early fall were passed in the West Indies without adventures until the Sumter made the port of St. Pierre just ahead of the United States warship Iroquois. Semmes insisted upon his rights in a neutral port, but it took the threats of a French man-of-war to save the Sumter from attack. The Iroquois would not give the cruiser twenty-four hours the start, as the laws provide. From the first the captain of the Iroquois meant to capture the Sumter. Her exploits had been noised abroad. He sneaked into St. Pierre under Danish colors, but Semmes was too wary. Finally the Yankee set a trap, with the aid of a friendly schooner, to catch the Sumter. But Semmes saw through the plot. One dark night he got up steam on the Sumter and promptly at the firing of the 8 o'clock gun started full speed on his course down the harbor. The Iroquois followed as soon as she could get under weigh, but the Sumter ran into the shadow of the mountains, doubled back on her course and escaped.

Having discovered the weaknesses of the Sumter, Semmes decided to cross the Atlantic and, if possible, capture a serviceable ship and transfer his flag to her. After three more captures Semmes found that he had more prisoners on board than he had guards to stand over them. It was mutually agreed that half of the prisoners, who numbered over forty, should be manacled at the wrists alternately for twenty-four hours at a time. After a few more captures the Sumter landed her prisoners at Cadiz, but was ordered to leave in twenty-four hours, which she did, sailing for Gibraltar. At that port the cruiser was refused coal, and in despair Semmes laid up his ship and sold her, then set out for London to find a still more exciting career on board the Alabama.

THE BOWSERS' PIANO

THE OLD MAN DISLIKES THE WAY
MRS. BOWSER HANDLES IT.

He indulges in a Lecture on Acoustics and Comes to Grief in Turning Things Upside Down Trying to Locate the Alleged Discord.

(Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.)

Not being much of a musician, and knowing that Mr. Bowser has no love for the strains of a piano, Mrs. Bowser seldom touches the instrument when he is about. The other evening, however, he came home to find her playing, and after a minute she saw him look up at the ceiling, at the opposite wall and around the room in an inquiring sort of way, and she instinctively felt that something was about to happen. He had nothing to say just then, but at the dinner table he suddenly paused with knife in one hand and fork in the other to observe:

"It is a singular thing, a mighty singular thing, and I can't understand how I have neglected it."

"What is it?" she queried.

"We have lived in this house for ten years, and for ten years we have had a piano, and yet I have paid no attention to the matter of acoustics. It was only this evening that I felt the discord."

"Is there anything wrong with the piano?"

"Perhaps not; but it must be moved at once to a different position. We will experiment a little and correct the discord. As I said, I can't understand

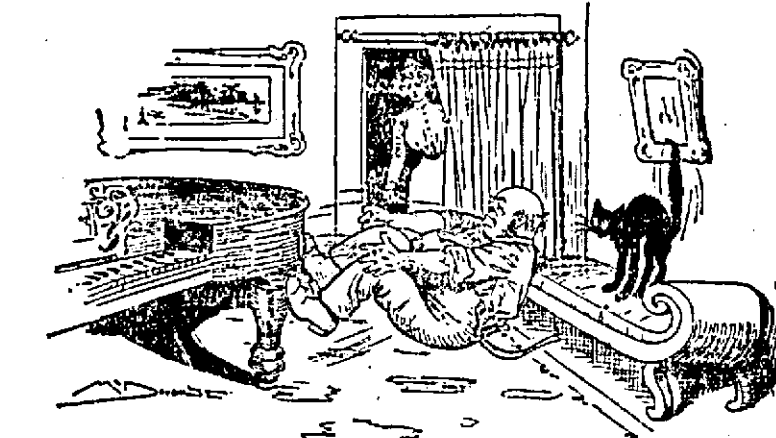

THE CASE TOPPLED OVER WITH A CRASH, why I should have so long neglected the law of acoustics; but better late than never."

"I—I think it sounds all right," she ventured to observe after a silence.

"Um! Very likely you do, as you have anything but a musical ear; but a few more such jars as I received half an hour ago would make me scream out. I presume you have heard or read of acoustics?"

"It is something about sounds, isn't it?"

"It is a good deal about sounds, Mrs. Bowser. It is the life of oratory or music. You must study a room or hall to find the best spot for either effort. A curtain, a fireplace, a picture even, may deflect and ruin the softest, sweetest notes of the finest piano ever made. Clay, Calhoun and Webster always turned their backs to a window when speaking and Patti always stood in the center of the stage to warble. It won't take me fifteen minutes to find the spot for our piano."

MR. BOWSER HAD LOST HIS HOLD AND GONE ROLLING OVER THE FLOOR.

Mrs. Bowser said no more. She knew that piano would be moved if it took twenty horses to do it, and she finished her meal in silence and wondered what the damages would amount to. Mr. Bowser expatiated at length on acoustics and the benefits to be derived by a student of them, and as dinner was ended he removed his coat and vest, collar and cuffs, and stood in the middle of the room and said:

"It's no wonder there is a discord. The tones of the piano strike the wall and rebound. We have got the bookcase where the piano ought to be. I'll make the change in five minutes."

"But you ought to have help," protested Mrs. Bowser.

"Never mind the help. The first thing is to haul that bookcase out of the way. You'd better take care of that blamed old cat or she'll get hurt."

It was an old fashioned bookcase with a couple of hundred books in it. Instead of removing the books, Mr. Bowser tackled the job at wholesale, and of course he hadn't got the thing fairly clear of the wall, where it had rested for years, when a creak fell out and the case toppled over with a crash that shook the house from top to bottom. He escaped by jumping over a chair, and the cat just missed it by a long leap, and when Mrs. Bowser suggested calling in a man to help she was met with:

"When I don't know enough to run a bookcase, I'll apply for admission to an idiot asylum! If you hadn't been fooling around here it never would have happened. Go up stairs and let me conduct this job in my own way."

The cook came to the head of the basement stairs to see if the roof had fallen in, and she seized the opportunity to whisper to Mrs. Bowser:

"Is it powder or dynamite this time, ma'am? If we are to be blown up or scattered in pieces I'll take kindly to ye to give me time enough to pronounce my mother's name before I die!"

When Mr. Bowser had the room to himself, he gave the old bookcase several sturdy kicks and then dragged it aside and tossed the books after it. In a quarter of an hour he was ready to tackle the piano. When he jumped for it, he hadn't the slightest doubt in his mind that it would prove an easy customer, but after a tug and a pull which broke both suspenders he realized that it had settled down to stay. He took a rest for a minute and then braced himself for a push. After an effort that bulged his eyes and reddened his face to a seashore sunburn he effected a move of two inches, but could not gain another hair's breadth. Mrs. Bowser came down and suggested that she call in a passing pedestrian, and the cook called up from the basement that she was used to toying with ice chests and barrels of ashes, but Mr. Bowser yelled at them:

"Didn't I say I was bossing this job? It's simply that the blamed old thing has settled down in the quicksand or something."

Then he seized it by a corner and braced his feet against the wall and heaved, but there was no give.

He worked his way in behind it and gave a mighty push, but only the brick wall behind him seemed to give way.

He crawled under it and sought to move it by humping up his back, but though he persisted till his spinal column was twisted out of plumb nothing moved.

The law of mechanics ought to apply to a piano, but it doesn't. Mr. Bowser sat panting and studying for five minutes before he decided that it didn't and that he had got to spring a sudden surprise or acknowledge his defeat. He got up and walked about in a carefree way, and when the cook called up that she had once moved an ice chest weighing 900 pounds with her own hands he didn't reply. He was giving that piano time to dissipate its suspicious and relax its guard. It was only twenty minutes before he felt that the time was ripe, and then he cautiously spurt on his hands, edged into position, and of a sudden he sprang forward and grabbed a corner of the instrument and put forth all his strength. Mrs. Bowser and the cook heard the grunt uttered by a man when he tries to push a smokehouse up hill, and this was followed by a crash. Mr. Bowser had lost his hold and gone rolling over the floor. When the women got to him, he was sitting up and looking about him in a dazed way and wondering if he had pulled the side of the house out or yanked the piano across the street. Not a word was said for a long minute. Then Mrs. Bowser softly observed:

"You will find the arnica on the mantel in my room, and if you will give your back a good rubbing and get into bed I'll fix up the bookcase with the help of the cook."

Mr. Bowser looked at her with an ice cold glare, and once or twice he opened his mouth as if to speak, but presently he got to his feet in a weary way, made a faint kick at the cat, and went creeping up stairs like a man who had no further interest in life. M. QUAD.

DECORATIVE WORK.

Embroidery in High Relief For Portieres and Large Articles.

The accompanying design carried off the first prize in a competition for the most original idea in decorative work that should be effective and at the same time easily workable.

This handsome design is intended for a portiere or a tablecloth cover. The work is executed on a white ground in two shades of green. The pattern, as will be seen from the illustration, is perfectly simple; but, unfortunately, pen and ink are quite unable to give an idea of the beauty of the high relief. The working is done with wools worked through and then cut so that they form a sort of soft cushion in the high relief. The method is similar to that used for making little woolly balls for children. It would be specially suitable for any bold designs to be inspected at a distance. At the same time it is quite fine enough to bear very close scrutiny.

A Woman's Face

Tells its own story. A laugh is often a lie on a woman's lips. It belies the pain which is tearing at the nerves. But the eyes have no part in the laugh. Their purple rings speak of suffering. There are lines too about the mouth which only pain can give. Many women look forward to a week of such misery each month. Three months of each year are given up to suffering. It weakens them. It ages them. It robs them of social pleasures and family joys. Can there be any excuse for such women who fail to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? It has cured thousands of such sufferers. Cured them perfectly and permanently. It cures ninety-eight out of every hundred who give it a fair and faithful trial. It's sure to help. It's almost sure to cure.

"I had falling of internal organs and had to go to bed every month; had irregular monthly periods which would sometimes last ten or twelve days," writes Mrs. Alice L. Holmes, of Coaling Springs, Uniontown, Pa. "Had indigestion so bad that I could not eat anything hardy. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

Kodol Digests what you Eat

Dyspepsia Cure

You might as well put fuel under a boiler without burning it and expect the engine to run, as to eat food and not digest it and expect to keep up nourishment for your body. You must have nourishment to live and when you cannot digest your food, Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will do it for you, with no aid whatever from the stomach. It contains exactly the same elements as Nature's digestive fluids and can't help but produce the same results.—David Taylor, Blind Ridge, Pa., writes:—"I have been afflicted for a number of years with dyspepsia and have tried various remedies without good results but was cured by one bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Thomas O'Donnell, the youngest member of the party and one of the youngest parliamentarians, is a man of unique personality. He possesses a high degree of culture and ability. At a very early age he was accounted foremost educationalist in Ireland. He was a member of the central committee of the teachers' organization and his election to represent his native constituency of West Kerry in parliament, but in the house of commons, remains a "faithful friend of the Irish teachers and a guardian of the rights."

It is as a strenuous advocate of the revival of the old language of Ireland that Mr. O'Donnell is now best known. When he made his maiden speech in parliament, he astounded the house by speaking in Gaelic, and, though he was ruled out of order, he attained his object of focusing public attention on his country's mother tongue.

FOOTBALL GAME AT ATHLETIC PARK

Seniors and All Stars of the High School Will Have Another Red-Hot Contest.

The football game at Athletic Park tomorrow afternoon between the All Stars of the High school and the Seniors will be the great attraction of Thanksgiving day for many people. It will be the best game of the season and those who saw the 0 to 0 game played by these teams about two weeks ago, expect a battle royal. The former game showed the teams to be evenly matched and splendid players. Both teams have been strengthened for this game and both are strongly determined to win. The game will be called at 3 o'clock and will be well worth seeing. The Senior team will be captained by Ross Bump and the All-Stars by Phil Wilbur. The lineup will be as follows:

SETON-THOMPSON ON WILD ANIMALS

An Entertaining Lecture in the People's Lecture Course Last Evening.

It was a magnificent audience which greeted Ernest Seton-Thompson, the noted author and lecturer, at the Congregational church last evening, as the second attraction on the People's Lecture course. The large auditorium was filled and many extra chairs were necessary to accommodate the people who were anxious to hear and see the man, in whom all who have read his books, are intensely interested.

Last evening's lecture was on "Wild Animals I Have Known" and it was extensively illustrated with stereopticon views, some of them made from photographs and some from sketches made by the speaker himself. In introducing his lecture Mr. Seton-Thompson said that behind all his stories and lectures there lay a moral or a lesson but it was not his intention to point them out. If his hearers wanted them, they could take them for themselves, if not they could leave them alone. He further said that all the adventures which he told about animals were absolute facts although he took the liberty sometimes of ascribing the adventures of several animals of one kind to one animal hero or heroine.

School for Dancing.
Prof. C. C. Williams wishes to announce the reopening of his dancing classes at East Side Odd Fellows' hall, on Friday, November 29. The series will consist of ten lessons, one being given each week. Evening class 7:30. Terms $4 per scholar, $6 per couple. Children class 4:30. Terms $3 per scholar, two from same family, $5. A social will follow the instruction each evening. Mrs. Williams will be present to assist in the work. Hoping to receive a liberal patronage, I am, Respectfully,
C. C. Williams, Member Normal School association, Masters of Dancing.

Season's Social Event
One of the social events of the season will be the annual golf party given by the St. Joseph Golf club at Assembly hall tomorrow evening. These annual Thanksgiving parties have come to be one of the fixtures of the social season and are looked forward to with pleasure by those holding invitations. The club members in charge of the party are making every effort to have it a social success and nothing is being left undone that would add to the comfort and pleasure of their guests. Smith's full orchestra will furnish the music.

The deer shooting in this vicinity was very poor this year for some reason and the party did not have much success.

SHARP DEMAND FOR AN OFFICER

Guests Grew Hilarious at a Wedding Held on South Franklin Street Last Evening.

A telephone call sent to the Myers house last night about a quarter to nine said: "Send an officer down to 152 South Franklin street at once, if you can find one, the mob are tearing our house down."

Officer Bencke was notified and started for the scene of trouble at once. He met Chief Hogan on his way and both hurried to 152 South Franklin opposite the Janesville Machine company's office. Here they found the house on the corner surrounded by a howling mob of about four hundred people who seemed to be trying to make life miserable for the inmates. The doors to the building were barricaded with barrels, the porches covered with cord wood, cabbage stumps, turnips and other vegetables which had been thrown at the house.

The road of the addition in the rear was covered with stove wood which had been thrown up there by the crowd and also by bricks knocked on the chimney by the missiles. The officers soon dispersed the crowd and quiet once more reigned about the corner. The cause of all this disturbance was the marriage of William H. Monsheau and Cora A. Dwyer which was solemnized at 8 o'clock last evening at St. Patrick's church parsonage by Rev. Dean E. M. McGinnity. The young couple were accompanied by Joseph Laveski and Margaret Ryan.

A sumptuous wedding supper was served at the home of the bride after the ceremony and it was at this time that their friends showed their noisy appreciation of the event. The young couple are both well known in the city and have a host of friends.

PREPARE FOR LARGE CROWD.

Seats for One Thousand People Have Been Erected at the Rink.

Present indications are that hundreds of skaters and spectators will make merry tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Palace Rink on S. River street. In no part of the city is an attraction on that is worthy of mention. The rink management have prepared a most worthy program. In the afternoon a brass band of twenty pieces will furnish music and for this attraction a charge of 10 cents will be made. In the evening a double attraction will await the public. Two brass bands comprising forty musicians will play through the entire evening. The members of Co. 1 will drill. The doors will be open at 7 o'clock and if one is to judge from the Thanksgiving crowd that filled the rink a year ago it will stand all in hand tomorrow to be on hand early. Following is the program:

Morning: From 9 to 12; children and their parents will be admitted free. The regular price of 10 cents will be charged for skates.

Afternoon: The Milton Junction Cornet Band will furnish music from 2:30 until 5 p. m. This band consists of 22 men and will give one of their popular concerts. Children under 12 years of age will not be allowed to skate in the afternoon.

Evening: There will be two brass bands, the Imperial band of this city, and the Cornet Band of Milton Junction will play alternately. Music all the time. Arrangements have been made to have Company "I" of Janesville give an Exhibition Drill at 9 o'clock sharp.

Unique Club Banquet.
The Unique club will give a banquet to the club members at their rooms on North Main street Thanksgiving afternoon. Smith's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music from 5 until 7 o'clock. The balance of the evening the Bower City Mandolin club will be in attendance.

Venison Supper at Park.
Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kemmerer of the Park gave a venison supper last evening to about twenty guests. The venison was some of Mr. Kemmerer's killing and was served to his guests in a manner that made the gentlemen of the party wish they were deer hunters. It was an enjoyable affair and gave great pleasure to the guests.

STOOD BEFORE THE MARRIAGE ALTAR

Miss Celia Egan and Michael Fanning Wedded at St. Patrick's Church Early This Morning.

St. Patrick's church was the scene of an early morning wedding today and at 6:30 o'clock Miss Celia Egan and Michael Fanning, both well-known young people of this city, stood before the marriage altar in the sacred edifice and exchanged the vows which made them man and wife. The sanction of the church was bestowed by the Rev. Dean E. M. McGinnity, who celebrated the impressive nuptial mass. The happy couple was attended by Miss Mary Kennedy and Edward Fanning. Both the bride and groom have a large circle of friends and are very popular with all who know them. They will make their home in this city and start out on life's journey together, attended by the best wishes of a host of acquaintances.

Laurent-Rabbideau Marriage
Miss Emily Laurent and Joseph A. Rabbideau were happily married this morning, the ceremony which united their future destinies being solemnized at St. Patrick's church at eight o'clock. Rev. Father J. J. Collins was the officiating clergyman. Miss Mary Rabbideau was the bridesmaid and the groom's attendant was Frank Broderick. Both bride and groom are residents of this city and they will be the recipient of many hearty congratulations from well-wishing friends.

Cash System Adopted
Owing to the increased prices of all supplies, the increasing number of accounts, the difficulty of collecting the same, and the time and attention it requires to collect, we, the undersigned laundries, have agreed to do only a cash business. After Dec. 1st, 1901, no bundle will be delivered unless paid for on or before the delivery of the same. Bundles not so paid for will be returned to the office. We feel positive that our patrons will find this more satisfactory to them as well as to us and trust that you will aid us in working for our mutual benefit. Five per cent. discount will be allowed on coupon tickets from $1.00 to $2.00, payable in advance. ## FAST WORK DONE IN MEXICO

Pan-American Congress Committees Busily Employed.

PLAN FOR FUTURE MEETINGS.

Delegates Believe Congress Should Assemble Hereafter Every Five Years—Suggestions as to Date by Charles M. Pepper, the Journalistic Member.

City of Mexico, Nov. 27.—The committees of the pan-American congress are rapidly completing their work with the exception of the arbitration committee and the committee on commerce and reciprocity. The latter is withholding action until it learns the stand which President Roosevelt will take on the subject of reciprocity in his forthcoming message to congress. The work of the arbitration committee is delayed by the difficulties of the subject and the many conflicting interests which it is necessary to conciliate. It held its first meeting today after a fortnight's adjournment.

To Meet Every Five Years.
The committee on future pan-American conferences will, it is understood, recommend the holding of a conference every five years. It is generally held that the present conference should designate the place where the next one is to be held and that the same course should be followed by each succeeding congress. The committee on the inter-oceanic canal will probably continue itself in general terms to recommending the excavation of such waterway without expressing preference for any particular route. C. M. Pepper, United States delegate, has submitted recommendations to the committee on resources and statistics. He advocates the making of every effort to secure full and reliable statistics of founts on production in the various American countries by co-operative action.

Information Is Desired.
He says in part: "The chief idea should be to secure information regarding the undeveloped founts of production and resources so that in the instance of railroad building projected it would be possible to ascertain just what riches might be opened up for commerce and industry. Similarly there should be information as to government or public lands, and the agricultural or other industries which they support. It would further be advisable to have the fullest data possible in regard to water power, and the possibilities of its utilization either in mining or manufacturing."

Scion of Nobility Confesses.
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 27.—The police of this city believe that they have secured in the person of John Varrell the scion of a noble English family. His father, it is said, is high in British circles of nobility. Varrell staggered into the police station and surrendered himself, afterward confessing to the commission of crimes in almost all of the larger cities of the country, involving a sum not less than $50,000, stolen, embezzled and obtained by forgery and misrepresentations in four years. When Varrell left his home in England, she says, he was given $25,000, which he soon squandered.

Chicago Market Report.
December wheat sold 72½¢ to 72¢ opening, rallied to 72½¢, held later at 72¢. May wheat opened 75½¢ to 75½¢, touched 75½¢, rallied to 75½¢, and held later at 75½¢ to 75½¢. In corn the early action was 62½¢ to 62¢, with rally to 62½¢ for December and 64½¢ to 64¢, with rally to 64½¢ May. Provisions were weak. Bradstreet's weekly exhibit of world's available stocks of wheat shows increase of 3,541,000 bu. east of Rockies and 1,400,000 Europe and Africa, total increase 6,941,000. Corn east of Rockies decreased for week 900,000 bu. and oats decreased 734,000.

Sultan Insists on Reforms.
London, Nov. 27.—The correspondent of the Times at Marakush telegraphs that the Sultan has announced to governors and deputy governors that he intends, in spite of all opposition, to carry out reforms in taxation. Officials who have been detected bribing visitors are to be severely punished. This announcement of the Sultan has caused consternation among the governors, who have waxed wealthy by extortions. The proposed new system includes a land tax. Both subjects and European residents in Morocco are expected to pay these taxes.

Frank James as an Actor.
Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 27.—Frank James, former desperado, and brother of Jesse James, made his first appearance on the stage here in "Across the Desert." "Were you scared, Mr. James?" he was asked. "Well," responded the man of many shooting scrapes, "the man who says he is never afraid is an idiot. You'll have to judge about that. I don't know whether I was a-foot or horseback. Don't say I am an actor—just say I am on the stage."

Vessel Lost in Storm.
New York, Nov. 27.—A large square-rigged vessel possibly went down in the recent gale off the Delaware capes. Whether her crew went down with her or have been saved may not be known for some time, for if picked up they might be taken across the Atlantic. Upon the survival of the crew probably will depend whether the name of the ship ever will be known.

Consul James Fletcher Is Dead.
Genoa, Nov. 27.—James Fletcher, United States consul in this city, is dead.

Suit Over Famous Painting.
New York, Nov. 27.—Collis P. Huntington was an art lover, and his last transaction in that line, made five days before his death, is the subject of a suit set down for trial in the Supreme court. A Correggio, "The Angel's Head," is the picture. Hermann Linde, a wealthy Pittsburgh man, who has an extensive art collection, is suing the executors of the Huntington estate for $6,000, the value of the painting. Mr. Linde is also a publisher in this city. Mr. Linde says he sold the painting to Mr. Huntington five days before the millionaire died. Mrs. Huntington and executors, Charles H. Tweed and Isaac E. Gates, declare the painting was never accepted by Mr. Huntington; that Mr. Huntington only had it brought up to his house for inspection. It is not known on what grounds the defense will set up that Mr. Huntington rejected the picture. It is thought probably that it may be asserted that he did not believe it a genuine Correggio.

Appointments by Roosevelt.
Washington, Nov. 27.—The President has made the following appointments: War—Captains of infantry: James W. Clinton, William A. Dunstable, Frank C. Bolles, Alexander T. Owen, Henry E. Eames, Robert Field, Benjamin M. Hartshorne, Jr., George S. Goodale, Arthur O. Kewell, Houston V. Evans, Harry N. Tebbetts, Russell C. Langdon, Reynolds J. Burt, James N. Pickering, Dennis E. Nolan, Charles E. Russell, Frederick W. Lewis, Merck B. Stewart, Clarence N. Purdy, Navy—John B. Buchanan, assistant surgeon, rank of lieutenant, junior grade; Edgar Thompson, passed assistant surgeon, rank of lieutenant, junior grade.

Held on Charge of Arson.
New York, Nov. 27.—Abraham Pleser, charged with having set fire to a Greenwich street tenement house in which sixty-two persons were asleep, was arrested and booked for arson. Pleser was one of the restaurant proprietors on the ground floor of the building, and at 2 o'clock a. m. the place was discovered to be afire. When the firemen broke in they found three separate blazes burning, with grease smeared on the woodwork to help them along. The scores of sleeping tenants in the building were hustled out safely.

Clem Studebaker Sinking.
South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27.—The life of Clem Studebaker is at its lowest ebb, a faint spark being all that keeps the great wagon manufacturer and friend of many presidents alive. Yesterday he was conscious only eight minutes. The attending physicians state that the vitality of Mr. Studebaker is wonderful.

Wants Irish Thinned Out.
London, Nov. 27.—The annual conference of the National Union of Conservative Associations, in session at Wolverhampton, unanimously passed a resolution favoring the introduction of a measure in parliament to "abolish the injustice occasioned by the over-representation of Ireland."

Telegraphic Cables.
The battle ship Missouri will be launched at Newport News Dec. 28. George Helmrod of Omaha has been appointed consul general at Apia, Samoa.

James Seymour, one of the convicts who recently escaped from Fort Leavenworth, has been captured at Tusculum, Ala.
Rev. R. V. Hunter of the Seventh Presbyterian church, Indianapolis, has received a unanimous call from the Central Presbyterian church of Buffalo. Rudolph Fischer, wholesale cigar and tobacco dealer, committed suicide with cyanide at Lafayette, Ind. Mental troubles are the supposed cause.

The Catskill, Manhattan and Mahopack, three old civil war monitors that have been lying at the League Island navy yard for years, have been condemned and ordered sold.

THE ELEVATOR BOY.

HE RELATES A PERSONAL EXPERIENCE WITH A NEW TENANT.

How He Got Revenge on an Alleged Agent For a Grindstone Quarry Who Refused to Help Him Lift the Mortgage on His Mother's Home.

(Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.)

It is but natural that an elevator boy in a skyscraper should seek to size up a new tenant as soon as possible, and when Mr. Hagadorn moved in on the ninth floor the other week I got a line on him in twenty-four hours. He claimed to be agent for a grindstone quarry, and he had a gritty way with him. I had scarcely decided that I could never give him my confidence and feel like a son toward him when he called me up to his room and said:

"Samuels, I want to say a word to you. I understand that you are fatherless?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you are trying to pay off a mortgage on your mother's home?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I don't blame your father for dying, and I hope the mortgage will be foreclosed. I wouldn't give you a cent piece to save your neck. You are one of those fresh kids who are on the spy and gossip, and you expect a quarter every time you carry a tenant up or down. You have run against a snag, Samuels. You have met a man who'll tie you up in knots the first time you open your mouth. Look out for me, Samuels!"

It is needless to say that my feelings were hurt. He had jumped on me with both feet without cause. A boy in a blacksmith shop would have gone away and felt crushed for a year, but I was used for about ten minutes and then thrust to get square. I had hardly got down stairs before my mind was made up that I would some day hold Mr. Hagadorn's nose to his own grindstone and hold it hard. He didn't have no boy about his office, and so I tried to make friends with his typewriter. I had no sooner offered her a stick of gum, however, when she turned on me with:

"Boy, I am up to your little game, and it won't work. Better tend right to your own little business."

A week had passed, and I had learned nothing about the grindstone business, when a strange cub made up

I HAD GOT HIM DOWN AND AT MY MERCY. Faces at me as I went out to lunch. I smiled in at once, and I had got him down and at my mercy when he offered to betray a secret if I would spare his life. I thought it was about a pot of gold, but it didn't pan out that way. He had been the grindstone man's boy in another skyscraper and had been discharged for falling in love with the stenographer. That grindstone business was all a bluff. Mr. Hagadorn had several little schemes. He was running a matrimonial agency, selling lottery tickets, doing a quiet pool business and roping in suckers on worthless mining stocks. All this the boy told me as I held him down by the hair, and I not only spared his life, but rewarded him with a bag of peanuts. Before taking any steps against the grindstone man I gave him a show. During a lull in business I stopped at his door and asked him if I could possibly do anything to make his stay in the building more comfortable. He didn't let me into his office; but, coming out into the hall, he grabbed me by the hair and blessed into my ear:

"Away with you or I'll dabble my hands in your heart's blood!"

I had given him a show, and he had refused it. As I smoothed down my hair and got back to my elevator there was no longer an iota of mercy in my heart. The curtain fell next afternoon at 3 o'clock. I had got on to the fact that a lot of fellows were in the daily habit of riding up to the tenth floor and then walking down to the ninth to see Mr. Hagadorn, and the rush was always greatest about mid-afternoon. I might have saved the typewriter on account of her sex, but at 2 o'clock, as I hung around to give her a word of warning, she swept past me with her nose up and a cold glare in her eyes, and I hardened my heart. An hour later the officials of the law were in possession. Mr. Hagadorn went down in my elevator, and a policeman was at his elbow.

I expected he would cry out against me, but he did not. On the contrary, he looked at me with a sorrowful face, and his voice was full of pathos as he said:

"Samuels, I see when too late where I made my fatal mistake."

"Yes, sir."

"I should have taken you into my confidence at the start and allowed you 6 per cent."

"Yes, sir."

"Then the mortgage would have been paid, your widowed mother would have got married again, and we would have been rich and happy. Samuels, let me take your hand while I vow never to snub another elevator boy."

There was great excitement around the building, with my name being frequently mentioned and witnesses hunted after, and Mr. Rasher, the agent, called me down to the office and asked: "Samuels, is this another case where a tenant refused your friendship?"

"He scorned me, sir," I replied.

"And you brought him low as a consequence. He ought to have known better, and you ought to have remembered that we have a dozen offices vacant. Samuels, I think you had better take a week's vacation, with pay. It will be good for your nervous system."

I took it, and when I returned to the skyscraper all was serene and the goose hung high for Samuels, the Elevator Boy.

M. QUAD.

A Matter of Pride.

"I'll give you $50 for that bit of canvas," announced the man of wealth.

"Couldn't think of accepting it," answered the poor artist. "It is not that I don't need the money, but my professional reputation would suffer if I let anything go at that price."

"Ah," replied the man of wealth, "In that case I will give you $10 for it and agree to tell all my friends that I paid $500."

"Now you are making a proposition that I can afford to consider," said the artist. "Hand over the ten."—Chicago Post.

Too Much to Expect.

Farmer Swackhammer—I lost my wife yesterday.

Farmer Pildecker—Not dead? Swackhammer—Now! Run away with a lightning rod peddler!

"Waal, Josh, I offer ye my sympathy! I'm mighty sorry for ye."

"Yes, I never did have any luck a-losin' things. Why, I lost a yaller dog fourteen times before he stayed lost."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Severely Practical.

"A woman who gets married," remarked the man with cold eyes and a square jaw, "should know how to cook."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "But I have sometimes questioned whether a woman who knows how to cook ought to marry. She might become more prosperous by opening a restaurant."—Washington Star.

Automobiling Exposed.

"How many horsepower is your automobile?" inquired the man in the dogcart.

"Ten horse and two men," responded the owner. "The ten horsepower runs it on the level roads, and my chauffeur and I get out and push it up the hills."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Extracting Without Pain."

"Nothing makes a man feel so small," observed the breakfast cynic, "as when he hears feminine screams emanating from a house, and, rushing forward, determined to rescue her or die in the attempt, he is confronted by the sign, 'Dentist.'"—Chicago News.

Encouraging.

Carrie—Tonight would be a good time to speak to papa.

Lindsay—Why do you think so? Carrie—He wore a new pair of shoes all day, and his feet are so tender he wouldn't dare do anything to hurt them.—Chelsea (Mass.) Gazette.

Futile.

I observed with disgust that Moradant was about to hang himself.

"I have nothing to live for," he explained.

What was I to say? I knew only too well the futility of trying to live for nothing in New York.—New York Sun.

Where rolls the Oregon and hears no sound Save his own dashings—

the superlative of solitude and remoteness was the idea he sought to convey. Indeed when the poem was written in 1811 imagination could hardly have pictured a region more inaccessible and farther remote from civilized habitation than the unmaped northwestern territory between the headwaters of the Missouri river and the Pacific ocean.

It was only a few years before—six years, to be precise—that the intrepid explorers Captain Meriwether Lewis and Captain William Clark and their heroic little band of followers made the first incursion into the boundless wilderness. The foot of white man had not before pressed this virgin soil, though in 1792 Captain Robert Gray, twenty days after the spring start they reached the Yellowstone, and in thirty more they sighted the Rocky mountains, still far in the distance. Making the portage at the Great Falls cost them a month's perplexing delay. Towing on another month brought them on Aug. 12 to a point where Captain Lewis stood with one foot on each side of the rivulet and "thanked God that he had lived to bestride the mighty Missouri, heretofore deemed endless." They dragged their canoes, however, five days longer. It was 400 days since they left the mouth of the river, and their mileage on its waters had been 3,000. A mile farther they stood on the great divide and drank from springs that sent their waters to the Pacific.

Obtaining horses and a guide from the Shoshone Indians, they traveled through the mountains until the latter part of September, when they entered the plains of the western slope. Early in October they were able to embark in logs that they had burned hollow upon a branch of the Columbia river, which, after manifold portages and perils, bore them to its mouth and the goal of their long and hazardous pilgrimage late in November, 1805, over eighteen months from the time the party left St. Louis, during which they had covered over 4,000 miles.

It is the one hundredth anniversary of this achievement that it is proposed to commemorate with an exposition at Portland in 1905. It was certainly an achievement worthy to be commemorated. It practically gave validity to the title of the United States to that great area subsequently known as the Oregon territory, from which latter was formed the whole of three states of the larger size and considerable parts of three others. It opened the way for westward development and gave us our first foothold on the Pacific.

Once a poetic figure for a vast solitude, "where rolls the Oregon" now signifies, to loyal Oregonians and northwesterners at least, a vast empire teeming with young and buoyant life, growing in population and wealth, abounding in enterprise and activity, prosperous and progressive; an empire yet in the infancy of its development, but vast in possibilities, from whose bounteous breast may be drawn the sustenance of many millions of people.

To call the world's attention to its resources is one of the prime purposes of the exposition. Like the St. Louis exposition, that at Portland is to be a certification of territorial expansion, an expected promoter of commerce, an expansion as well as a developer of the section wherein it is held.

The idea of the exposition originated with the Oregon Historical society, and it speedily met the hearty approval of the Portland chamber of commerce, the board of trade and the Manufacturers' association, all of which bodies are working in harmony to make it worthy of the historic event which it is to commemorate. "Where rolls the Oregon"—The Lewis and Clark Centennial American Pacific exposition and Oriental Fair—is the ambitious and somewhat too comprehensive name of the enterprise.

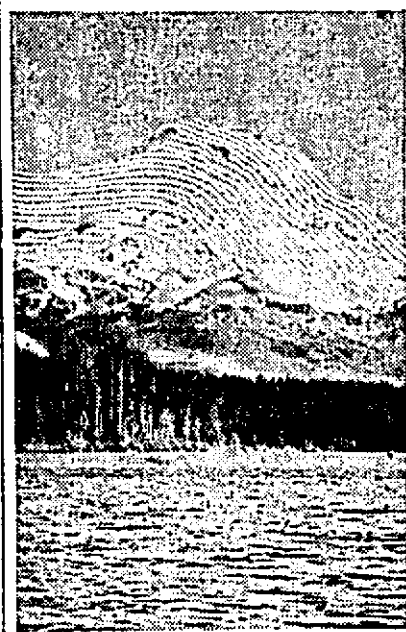

Though a trifle burdensome to write, the title fairly represents the large and comprehensive spirit of the northwest. It is expected that there will participate in it primarily Pacific coast states and the commonwealth now embracing the former Oregon territory, the balance of the United States, our new islands in the Pacific and the orient, the British provinces to the north, China, Japan, Russia, Mexico, the South American republics and—well, the rest of the world.

There could be no finer site for a great interstate and international fair than Portland affords. It is at once a seaport and an inland city. Though a hundred miles from the sea, its fresh water harbor can accommodate the largest ocean going ships. Located on the Willamette river, twelve miles above its confluence with the Columbia, Portland occupies a strategic position with reference to the limitless resources of the interior and the commerce of the Pacific. It is the natural distributing point of one of the richest agricultural, mineral, fruit raising and timber and grazing sections of the American continent.

Portland has a population of something over 100,000. Many of its public and private buildings—the chamber of commerce, hotels, schools, theaters, hospitals, churches, mercantile houses and residences—would be creditable to any eastern place of 250,000. Its streets are generally well paved. It is lighted throughout with electricity and has over a hundred miles of electric street railways. Its water supply is inexhaustible and would be abundant for a population of 500,000. It comes from the everlasting glaciers of the mountains, is as clear as crystal and as pure as the snows that glisten on Mount Hood and Mount St. Helens, which stand as sentinels guarding the city.

However great and attractive the exposition may be—and no one who knows the enterprise of the northwest can have any misgiving on that point—this region presents one attraction which human ingenuity and cunning cannot hope to equal. This is Portland's unrivaled scenic setting. Magnificent panoramas of field, forest, stream and mountain greet the vision in every direction. It is, however, the snow capped peaks of Mount Hood and Mount St. Helens that give special grandeur to the scene. There is something absolutely unique about what may be called the Oregon system of mountain peaks, beginning with Shasta, 14,440 feet high, in northern California and including the Three Sisters, 8,500; Jefferson, 9,000, and Hood, 11,200, in Oregon; St. Helens, 9,750; Adams, 9,570, and Tacoma, 14,444, in Washington. Elsewhere, as in Switzerland or along the Canadian Pacific, snow peaks are always adjacent or tumbled together in an irregular mass, and this is the case even in the Sierra Nevada of central California. But the Cascade giants of the Oregon region, from Mount Shasta to Mount Tacoma, are all isolated peaks, separated by many miles from other peaks, with only a low range of mountains connect-

MOUNT HOOD AS SEEN FROM LOST LAKE. This gives them a grandeur and individuality which is lacking in peaks that simply form parts of an irregular group.

As Joaquín Miller poetically puts it, "Here are the shining pyramids of white, starting, sudden and solitary, from the great black sea of firs, standing as supporting pillars to the dome of intense blue sky, which startle, thrill and delight you, though you have stood unmoved before the sublimest scenes on earth."

HE WAS REFEREE.

But Now Wishes That He Had Never Taken the Job.

"No, I didn't run against a load of hay," said the man with a black eye. "It was worse than that. I had three hours to wait in a Connecticut town the other day, and while I was waiting some fellows got up a running race and asked me to act as referee."

"And you didn't know any better?" asked the man with the broken nose.

"Not then. I even thanked 'em for the honor shown me, and I have no doubt that I looked very dignified and important over it."

"Well, the race was run?"

"It was."

"And you made a decision?"

"I did. Yes, one of the runners came out ten feet ahead, and of course I decided in his favor."

"And then?"

"Why, the other six hopped on to me, of course, and a part of the result is before you. Yes, sir, they loked blazes out of me and left me for dead, and the next crowd that wants to honor me will see me growing wings to fly out of it."

A Bad Disease

There is a certain disease that has come down to us through many centuries and is older than history itself, yet very few outside of those who have learned from bitter experience know anything of its nature or characteristics. At first a little ulcer or sore appears, then glands of the neck or groin swell; pimples break out on the breast, back or some other part of the body and fill with yellow pustular matter; the mouth and throat become sore and the tongue is at all times badly coated. Headaches are frequent, and muscles and joints throb and hurt, especially during damp, rainy weather. These are some of the symptoms of that most loathsome of all diseases, Contagious Blood Poison.

This strange poison does not affect all alike; some are literally eaten up with it within a short time after being inoculated, while others show but slight evidence of any taint for a long time after exposure, but its tendency in every case is to complete destruction of the physical system, sooner or later. S. S. S. is a safe and infallible cure for this bad disease—the only antidote for this specific poison. It cures Contagious Blood Poison in every form and stage thoroughly and permanently. S. S. S. contains no Mercury, Potash or other harmful minerals, but is strictly and entirely a vegetable remedy, and we offer $1,000.00 reward for proof that it is not.

OUR MEDICAL which was established years ago, is doing a noble work in relieving suffering. Give our physicians a short history of your case and get their advice. This will cost you nothing, and what you say will be held in strictest confidence. With their help and a copy of our book on Contagious Blood Poison you can manage your own case and cure yourself at home.

Start Girls Right!

Many beautiful girls become invalids for life, because at the crucial period of puberty they pay no attention to the laws of health. Mothers should protect their daughters' health by giving them necessary information and proper treatment. When the menses come on a girl unawares in her inexperience she is either frightened into convulsions, or scared into trying to check the flow. Many girls have checked the flow and it has never started again. And as a result they have grown pale-faced, with "crow's-feet" on their cheeks, and dark hal-moons under their eyes. A dose of taken every morning after a girl is twelve years old will bring the menses on properly and keep them regular. It will help her to develop into attractive womanhood and equip her for the duties of wife and motherhood. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

WINE OF CARDUI

The Hollywood, Ashbury Park N. J., February 3, 1900.

I read your advertisement in regard to Wine of Cardui in the Baltimore American, and it so favorably impressed me that on my visit to Baltimore during the holidays I purchased a bottle of it for my adopted daughter, who was suffering with female troubles. She had been under the doctor's care for some time, and when her periods would come on her suffering was something terrible. I induced her to try it and the first dose brought on her menses. She took it regularly according to the directions, and was greatly relieved. To use her own words, "It saved my life." J. WESLEY CROSS.
